Washington—(CPA)—With the emphasis given by President Hoover to the idea that the business depression is world-wide, government agencies have been particularly alert to cable their impressions from week to week of how the economic situation is developing in the principal countries of the world. Information in brief indicates relatively little change on the horizon particularly since local conditions almost everywhere present complications.

Australia is on the eve of increased taxation, because of federal and state budget proposals, which of course does not encourage business.

Argentina finds itself stimulated by the news that a fifty million dollar short term loan has been successfully negotiated in the United States.

The weakness in the world cereal prices had affected business and credit adversely.

Slight improvements industrially are reported from Austria, particularly in the iron and machinery trades.

Bolivia finds itself with "progressive" less favorable conditions during the last month with credits tight and collections difficult.

Slow business is reported from Brazil during August and September with few exceptions. The political situation has produced uneasiness.

UNCERTAINTY IN CANADA
General business conditions in Canada are marked by uncertainty, dealers awaiting the trend of consumer demand although it is believed the low point of the economic depression has been passed.

General business during September in Chile was slightly under the previous month despite the revival of retail sales based upon unusual seasonal demand.

Business conditions in North-China are quiet with buying continuing slow.

Economic conditions in Colombia showed no improvement in September. The serious depression continued throughout the country with unemployment increasing.

Trading is dull in Costa Rica and very little change has been noted in September as compared with August.

Unsatisfactory economic conditions prevail in Cuba and it is generally conceded there that business activities have shown a further decline in.

CURTIS AND FESS TO SPEAK IN MIDDLE WEST

Washington—(CP)—Two Republican campaigners—Vice President Curtis and Senator Fess of Ohio, the chairman of the Republican National Committee—set out today on a speaking trip through the middle west.

Both men speak tonight at Clarksburg, W. Va., whence they proceed to Columbus, Ohio, tomorrow.

On Thursday they are to participate in a celebration at Springfield, Ohio, commemorating the pioneer work of the territory of John Rogers Clark.

Mr. Clark continues on to Indianapolis on Friday and goes to New Albany, Ind., to speak on Saturday night. He also has agreed to speak later in Missouri and at Pueblo, Colo., in addition to participating in the campaign in his home state of Kansas.

The vice president and Senator Fess will motor westward.

Heavy Toll Claimed By Texas Flood

27 Persons Injured as Tornadoes and Floods Rage in Many Regions

Dallas, Texas—(AP)—Twenty-seven persons were injured a large number of small buildings were wrecked and communications were impaired today in the wake of a series of torrential rains, floods and high winds in widely separated sections of the state.

Roaring out of the southwest yesterday, a tornado all but swept away the little town of Latexo in east Texas, cutting a swath 300 yards wide for six miles and narrowly missing a school house full of small children.

Six farmhouses were destroyed, along with dozens of small outbuildings, great trees were snapped off, and roads were so littered with debris rescue parties traversed them with the utmost difficulty. Ambulances and automobiles took 26 injured to Crockett, where emergency treatment was administered.

High winds demolished servant houses and garages at Houston, blew a street car from its track, lifted roofs from larger buildings and created havoc with light and power lines. West Columbia reported damage to some buildings.

Meanwhile, as a result of heavy rains, which came after one of the worst droughts in the history of the state, floods inundated part of the business section at Brady in west Texas and other low areas along various rivers and creeks.

Converging on Brady from three sides, water from Brady river crept over the square in the business section to a depth of several feet, rushing into business houses and caused damage estimated at approximately $250,000. Fifty small houses were swept away, no one was carried in the square and rammed into the front of a drug store. All power lines and most communication lines were put out of commission, and this city spent the night in darkness. One man suffered a broken leg.

STOCK MARKET DIPS, THEN CLIMBS AGAIN

Several Leading Issues at Year's Low Before Making Partial Recoveries

New York—(AP)—The stock market struck a deep air pocket today and began to labor out of it after such well-known barometers as United States Steel common, General Electric, General Motors and American Telephone had slumped to new lows for the year or longer.

Extreme losses ranged from $2 to $5 in scores of active issues, but buying orders early in the afternoon lifted prices moderately from the bottom. The selling came in vigorous spurts during the morning after a slightly higher opening which was apparently based on reports that the New York Stock exchange had vared several bear operators against unethical trading.

Wife Of Chicago's Mayor Robbed Of Gems By Thugs

Chicago—(AP)—Mrs. William Hale Thompson, stripped of her gems by the eager fingers of three robbers at midnight, was in a state of collapse today while her husband, the mayor, issued orders demanding immediate action by his police commissioner.

"It's up to Alcock," Mayor Thompson said laconically. He was at his office early, refusing to see newspapermen. John H. Alcock, acting commissioner of police, likewise denied himself to interviewers.

Chicago—(AP)—The crime wave reached brazen heights today with the robbery of the mayor's wife, Mrs. William Hale Thompson, in the very door of her Gold Coast home.

She was stripped of jewels valued at approximately $20,000. She was so shaken by the experience as to become hysterical. Her policeman chauffeur was robbed of his star and his revolver, and narrowly escaped a bullet death. The three thugs escaped.

CAMPBELL IN CLASH WITH PARTY CHIEF

Conservative Makes Vain Effort to Commend Hoover Employment Work

Madison—(AP)—Attempts to have the state Republican Central committee commend President Hoover for his work in the unemployment crisis were frustrated here today by its chairman, Herman L. Ekern, and the committee at large.

W. J. Campbell, Oshkosh, Conservative leader, sought to introduce a resolution commanding the committee except matters relating to the state campaign, which will be culminated by election Nov. 4.

In appealing from the decision, Mr. Campbell said, "you're asking Republicans to join this movement by turning down a resolution before it is even read." He accused Ekern of "rough-riding" business through the committee.

The chairman was supported by the committee in refusing the resolution, which read:

"The Wisconsin State Central committee of the Republican party commend President Hoover for the steps taken in the fall of 1929 and thereafter to promptly set in motion movements to minimize the effects of unemployment due to a world-wide depression that first expressed itself in the United States in the stock-market crash of October 1929. His clear-sighted action in organizing, cooperative movements of the federal and state governments, and through the calling-together of and securing from large employers of labor agreements not to take advantage of the situation by reducing wages, and further agreements which were later cooperated in by large industries and the states for increased construction work, both public and private, resulted in the first six months of 1930 in increased construction of more than four hundred million over the same period of 1929.

SAYS HE MET CRISIS
"No other president in our history has been confronted with a more sudden economic crisis, and no president in any emergency of this nature has acted more promptly or efficiently."

The tilt over the resolution was the only incident to break the tranquility of the meetings, which heard members from the 11 congressional districts discuss the campaign outlook. Officers also were elected.

The strength of the Progressives was indicated in election of secretary when Mrs. Rose Meyers, Sauk City, defeated Mrs. Florence Bickel, Oshkosh, a Conservative, 35 to 7. After the test vote, Conservatives made no effort to win an office.

Before attempting to introduce his resolution, Mr. Campbell warned the committee it was in danger of losing more than 200,000 Conservative votes unless the Progressive group "is willing to show a national Republican attitude." William Knauf, Clinton, another Conservative, presented this view when he urged the committee to see that Wisconsin's citizenry is "Hoover Republican as well as La Follette Republican."

Besides Mrs. Meyers, officers named were J. E. Kvie, Whiteswater, executive secretary; Joseph A. Zedner, Milwaukee, treasurer, and W. T. Elyse, Madison, Roy Empey, Green Bay, Gus Dick, Milwaukee, and Mr. Ekern and Mrs. Meyers, members of the executive committee.

RUMOR WRIGHT WILL RUN FOR HIS FORMER OFFICE

Mauston—(AP)—Friends of Lyall T. Wright, former "boy sheriff" of Juneau-co who was recently acquitted of the slaying of Dist. Atty. Clinton G. Price, today said they expected him to seek his previous office.

Wright is now serving an eight months sentence for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws as result of affording protection to a huge still near Kibbourn, Wis. He was ousted from office as an aftermath of the conviction.

Wright's friends said he was determined to win back his former standing in Juneau-co by running for the sheriff's office on a vindication platform.

UPSETS SEEN IN POLITICS OF OLD WORLD

Next Few Weeks May Bring Changes of Government in Several Countries

London—(AP)—Parliaments of the principal governments of Europe convene during the next few weeks to wrestle with problems fraught with grave political possibilities. Changes of government appear to impend in more than one country.

Political unrest characterizes all of Europe, while in the background everywhere the effects of the world economic depression are evident.

The newly elected Reichstag will meet Oct. 13, following the most startling election since the Republic was founded, and the British and French parliaments convene Oct. 28. Italy's chamber of deputies will meet Nov. 24, and the senate Dec. 9, but under the Fascist regime these are important. The grand council of the Fascist organizations, which is the supreme governmental body of the kingdom, meets today.

Opening of the British parliament Oct. 28, will be a state occasion, reading his address from the throne before the assembled members of his empire, for the imperial conference will still be in session.

At the moment the British political situation is more muddled than at any time since the World War. Ramsay MacDonald's Labor government has made a notable record in the field of foreign affairs but has failed with domestic unemployment.

CONSERVATIVES SPLIT
Outcome of an immediate election in case of a Labor downfall would be problematical, but it is believed that a election is not likely for the time being because the tariff issue has split the Conservative ranks.

David Lloyd George, with a handful of Liberals still holds the balance of power, but at present he is supporting the Laborites instead of opposing them, as he did in MacDonald's first government. MacDonal's Liberal support and with the Conservatives divided the MacDonald men would seem likely to hold on.

In that case the general election which had been expected early this fall will not occur before the new year, at least.

The German political future is dramatically uncertain. When the Reichstag convenes Oct. 13, no party will have a majority, and there will be no positive majority for any group of parties willing to work together. The Social Democratic party, however, has indicated that it may work with Chancellor Heinrich Brüning. This is the largest party in the Reichstag and would greatly strengthen the government.

That the fascists might ascend to power at this time is held unlikely.

The French chamber of deputies, like the Reichstag and the house of commons, will be the scene of stiff battles following the opening Oct. 28.

Premier Andre Tardieu is in for a fight, principally through opposition to some of his cabinet members notably Aristide Briand, foreign minister, and M. Laurent-Eynac, minister for air.

Tardieu, who prorogued parliament rather precipitately last July in a moment of distress, appeared not to have gained strength and maneuver cleverly to maintain power.

CARDS AT PHILADELPHIA FOR 6TH SERIES GAME

Philadelphia—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals, bent on evening up the world series games with the Philadelphia Athletics tomorrow and taking the classic event on Thursday, arrived here this afternoon. All players were reported in good condition.

The players appeared in fine spirits as they piled into taxicabs and were driven to their hotel.

"We are far from faked," said Manager Gabby Street. "We will go right back at the A's tomorrow with full faith."

Street, Hafey and Frisch agreed that the series so far has been one of the "most closely pitched," they can recall.

STEEL HELMET GROUP ATTACKED BY RED MOB

Frankfurt-am-Main—(AP)—Thirty members of the steel helmet organization of former soldiers were attacked last night by a Communist mob and had to take refuge in a safe.

The startled congregation at first thought an anti-Semitic raid was in progress, but when they grasped that the steel helmet group was being attacked, they intervened and saved the victims by hiding them in a back room until police arrived. Several of the steel helmets were injured.

NOTORIOUS RACKETEER IS "TAKEN FOR RIDE"

New York—(AP)—Herbert Irving Roberts, notorious gunman and racketeer who escaped in 1928 from the Virginia state penitentiary, was found dead early today in the back seat of an abandoned automobile in a residential section of the Bronx. Police said he had been taken for a "ride."

There was one bullet wound in the temple. Since his escape from the Virginia prison he is believed to have been active as a bootlegger.

"Y" SEEKING 1,200 MEMBERS IN 15TH DRIVE

President Evans of Ripon College, Speaks at First Campaign Dinner

More than 140 Appleton men and boys last evening started the fifteenth anniversary jubilee membership campaign of the Y. M. C. A. with 1,200 members and $18,000 as their goal. The campaign will extend until Friday evening, Oct. 10.

Fifteen years ago the present Y. M. C. A. building was dedicated, the last step in more than a year's work of raising over $100,000 to give the city a building in which the association program could be carried on for many years.

Last night the anniversary of that first campaign was celebrated with a dedication dinner and a campaign drive. It was observed with tribute to the men who made the building possible, to those who were directors of the association at that time, to members of the building committee and to those who served but have died in the meantime.

NAMES PIONEERS
The evening's program opened with several music selections and a dinner. F. J. Harwood, executive committee chairman then took charge of the group and welcomed the workers attending the meeting.

He recounted that he had been on the board when the building was dedicated 15 years ago and named the directors who had made the institution possible.

They were F. J. Harwood, J. G. Rosebush, A. F. Tuttle, J. A. Wood, S. R. Wagg, G. E. Buchanan, W. A. Fannon, William Jones, O. P. Schlafer, Frank Salberlich, A. R. Eads, and C. G. Seeger. The building committee at that time was F. J. Harwood, J. G. Rosebush, F. J. Wood, A. F. Tuttle, G. E. Jones, S. R. Wagg, Herman Erb, and George P. McGilgan.

Tribute was paid to the members of the first board who are dead, to the contractors for the good work they did on the building, to Rudolph Scherke who has been janitor of the building since its opening, and to George F. Werner, the general secretary, "to whom much credit is due," Mr. Harwood said, "for the success which has attended the organization."

Mr. Harwood also revealed some of the history which led up to erection of the present building, and how the first gift for the structure was

NORTH CAROLINA MAN HEADS BROTHERHOOD

Milwaukee—(AP)—United Lutheran Church Brotherhood members today elected as their national president, H. E. Isenhour, Salisbury, N. C. In a convention preliminary to the National Lutheran church meeting here, these vice presidents were also elected: Charles Delever, Chicago; Charles F. Oberholtz, Niagara Falls, N. Y.; the Rev. H. C. Michaels, Johnstown, Pa.; G. R. Edgar, Charlestown, W. Va.; was elected secretary, and C. W. Howe, Chicago, was elected treasurer. The brotherhood selected these members of the executive committee: H. C. Poffenberger, Baltimore; O. E. Schellberg, Omaha, Neb.; and Harry Cope, Greensburg, Pa.

At the closing session the brotherhood voted to sponsor an agricultural school for boys and men in the mountains of Virginia.

ROBBER SHOTS MAN AT WASHINGTON HOME

Washington—(AP)—Louis Bush, president of the Gray Line Motor Tours, Inc., lay severely wounded in a Washington hospital today after a man believed to be a robber had fired three bullets into his body late last night in the garage of his home.

Bush had driven into the garage, in a fashionable section near the British embassy, before he discovered his assailant. During a scuffle the unidentified man fired one bullet into Bush's arm, another in his side and third into his chest before escaping.

ASKS $50,000 BECAUSE SHIP WAS FORCED DOWN

Chicago—(AP)—Elmer W. Arch, an attorney, has sued Universal Air lines for $50,000 damages, charging that a forced landing was a breach of contract.

The plane, in which Arch was being flown from Louisville, Ky., to Chicago, was forced down at Springfield, Ill., because of weather conditions.

Arch maintains that the forced landing caused him to miss an important business engagement.

Sportsmen Assured Of More For Their Money

When the scribe set out to learn about shotguns and all other sportsmen concerned with hunting, he hesitated a moment. After all, he realized he had ever come to hunting was the time two years ago when he spent a quarter at a shooting gallery and tried to hit the ducks as they rode by on a chain. But his business is asking questions and Monday he set out to do it.

Of course, he was handicapped slightly by the world series. Which remark may implicate whomever you please. At any rate, he visited enough of the dealers in hunting supplies to get the information dear to the hearts of the gentlemen who get up at ungodly hours of the morning to bring home the ducks who originally were headed for Florida.

You may have gathered by this time that conditions in the matter of hunting supplies are rather well stabilized. They are. The only chance this year of particular note has shown itself in the price of shells which has taken a slight increase. To the dedicated wood hunters, this probably is not alarming.

Guns themselves remain at about the same price levels as last year, any price difference being largely brought about by the retailers themselves. Here again, organization and co-ordination between manufacturers have brought about a welcome stabilization in this field.

The incidentals to hunting: decoys, blinds and the like are slightly lower in price this year, though the buyer can be assured that prices here too are well established.

The materials and workmanship which go into guns, shells and the like, naturally remain the same as do designs and the price materials. It so happens that 1930 finds the manufacturers better organized and freed from the abuses of price-cutting which marked the industry not many seasons ago.

Hence Mr. and Mrs. Duck will be taken to dine this year at about the same cost as last year.

And, even to the novice eyes of the scribe, it was easy to see that the hunting supply headquarters were well stocked to meet the demands of hard-to-please hunters. Maybe the scribe will give up writing and take to hunting.

A lot of people hope so.

Nab Suspect In Robbery At Woodman

Clyde Hanes Bound Over to District Court at Lancaster for Holdup

Lancaster—(AP)—Clyde Hanes, suspect in the Woodman, Wis., bank robbery several weeks ago is awaiting the opening of district court, next Monday. Following his sensational escape through a Michigan swamp with Vance Purdy, another suspect, and his arrest in Eldell, La., after several shots were fired at him, he waived preliminary hearing here yesterday and was bound over to the Michigan line. Before officers could get to their cottage, they had been ousted as undesirable. They fled into a swamp on the Michigan-Wisconsin line northwest of Iron Mountain, Mich.

The swamp watch by police continued for nearly two weeks to no avail. Hanes told Sheriff Greer here yesterday the two floated down a river on logs lashed together with wire.

Hanes was traced to Akron, Ohio, where he was said to have stolen a car to continue his flight. Sheriff Greer and detectives of the State Bankers association next located him at Sileld, La., where he was registered at a hotel as Roy Davis.

When he attempted to escape there motorcycle officers fired six shots through the rear of the car he drove. When these shots failed to halt him one motorcycle officer passed the car and shot into its radiator from in front. Hanes again took to the woods. There he was captured, suffering bullet wounds in both arms.

Hanes, who said he drove the car while Purdy and Hanes robbed the Woodman bank, will probably be brought here to testify against the latter. Hanes has told the sheriff that as he was the only good driver of the trio, he operated the machine in which the bandits escaped, while Heath and Purdy robbed the bank.

70,000 Marching Legionnaires In Gay Parade In Boston

REVIEWED BY PERSHING AND OTHER CHIEFS

Generals Gouraud, Hickie and Secretary Hurley in Reviewing Stand

Boston—(P)—Seventy thousand marching men, who trod the muddy roads of war a dozen years ago, marched in gay parade today through streets where once the cannon of another war roared.

Perhaps to the "boys" of the American legion, as they swung along today, their heads high, their faces gleaming with the memories of the war, there was little thought for the "boys" of '76. But about them as they stepped briskly through the streets of historic old Boston, there was much to remind them of the men who fired the first shots for the liberty for which they fought nearly a century and a half later.

Past old Boston common, which echoed to the impassioned cries of Revolutionary orators, over Beacon hill and down the hill beside the weathered walls of Kings chapel, where the soldiers of Great Britain worshiped; they marched today, surrounded by the ghosts of the past.

They swung beneath a victory arch that turned their faces toward Faneuil hall, "cradle of liberty"; and trod the spot where British rifles cracked in the "Boston massacre." The rampant uniforms of the legion state house from whose balcony the Declaration of Independence was read to the populace, gazed down upon them as they passed, as they have gazed upon the marching men of every war in the country's history.

In unbroken array, eight abreast, the men of the legion marched in their officers' ranks, the greatest parade of World war veterans—a greater array than gathered in one marching unit even during war-time days. From 10 o'clock, when the first units got under way, there was no let up through the day and darkness was expected to fall as the last rank reached the end.

FROM ALL SECTIONS
They were there from Alaska to Panama, from Maine to the Philippines, a scattering from the more distant points, a regiment or more from nearby states. At 9 o'clock they began to form and the first to start had reached the end of the five mile route before many of the delegations had gathered at their starting points.

At their head, as grand marshal, was Paul V. McNutt, Indiana, past national commander; Major General Clarence R. Edwards of Massachusetts, war-time commander of the 26th "Yankee" division from New England; honorary grand marshal, and William H. Griffin of Massachusetts, past department commander, as chief of staff, and their aides. Behind them, in line of nearly 400 bands and bugle corps, marched the champion drum corps of the legion, the band of the Electric Post 228 of Milwaukee, Wis.

NOTABLES IN STAND
Through Beacon street they climbed beneath festooned arches up the slope of Beacon hill and past the state house, where the first of four reviewing stands stood. Here were gathered state officers. At the city hall was another reviewing stand for city officials.

But it was the third stand on Tremont street that brought a quickened step and the snappy "eyes right" of every veteran. For here stood the man who led them in France, General Pershing. In the stand with him were National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer, General Henri Gouraud, bearded and craggy-faced French leader, and Major General Sir William Hickie of England, Secretary of War Patrick Hurley and Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams and a group of other distinguished guests.

As for the legionnaires themselves—though their step was brisk and their heads erect, the mark of passing years was evident in graying hair and bulging waistcoats.

Though the blue overalls cap of the legion was the general headgear, many of the delegations sported gay caps. Somewhere hid the heads of several western delegations, where the old tin helmet was back, a blazing shining topee of silvery nickel.

Heading the delegations was that of Alaska, followed by Canada, France, Hawaii, Italy, Mexico, Panama, the Philippine Islands and Porto Rico. Then came the states with Arizona leading the list and Massachusetts as the last bringing up the rear with several thousand men in line.

As they passed the Tremont street reviewing stand, they were greeted by salutes from Commander Bodenhamer and General Pershing. They swung down Tremont street and finally through to Columbus are where they passed the last reviewing stand, before breaking up at Massachusetts avenue.

TEACHERS' BODY HAS ITS FIRST MEETING
Over 100 parents and teachers attended the first meeting of the Parent Teachers association at First Ward school Monday evening. The meeting was in charge of Prof. W. E. Rogers, president.

Superintendent B. J. Rohan explained the new heating system, and a trio made up of Miss Ramona Huesenar, piano, Phoebe Nichols, cello, and Jack Sampson, violin, presented several instrumental selections.

Four new teachers, the Misses Florence Housum, Genevieve Thelen, Wilma Stevenson and Fern Horde, were welcomed after which the parents visited the home rooms of their children to become acquainted with the teachers.

Boy Killers, 14 and 17, Face Chair

The boys are Louis Kuhan, 17 (left) and John Woods, 14. Prosecutor G. C. McKelvey of St. Clairsville says he will demand the death sentence for both.

Hoople Feels Badly Over That Homerun By Mr. Fox

(BY MAJOR AMOS A. "HOMERUN" HOOPLE)
St. Louis, Mo.—Egad, betrayed. In the old days of rounders which I played in Tallahassee as a youth, when the speroid was smitten over the outer barrier the result inevitably was disastrous. Around, customs have not been vastly altered since those halcyon days. Thus fates decide ponderous issues.

Those Cardinals, of whom I made mention yesterday, as having a chance to win the blue ribbon classic of baseball, disappointed your correspondent this day.

But perhaps the discrepancy is not laid entirely at their doors, egad.

Let us suppose the left field boundary had been moved a modest distance, let us suppose, for arbitrary reasons, two thousand feet. What an opportunity there for the outer gardeners to roam and stroll about in quest of the elusive fly. The fifth game of the blue ribbon classic of baseball then might not have ended as it unhappily did.

Task, task, the souls of St. Louis are fickle folk. Yesterday there were streamers hanging from the windows, sirens were beating hither and yon, and your correspondent happened to stroll under a laundry sack filled with water as it hurried earthward, much to what you can image was your correspondent's embarrassment.

Now, however, with the ball team going to Philadelphia to wind up the classic, the town is as quiet as the tomb, veritably, thus it occurs. Cheerio then until the morrow when your correspondent will drop you a few well chosen tidings from the Baseball Writers' special.

2 4-WHEEL DRIVE TRUCKS PURCHASED FOR SNOW REMOVAL
County Highway Committee Buys Machines from Clintonville Firm

With the purchase of two more trucks and two more snow plows yesterday afternoon, the county highway committee took final steps to complete the equipment it will use in its snow removal fight this winter.

The committee yesterday bought two four-wheel drive trucks from the Clintonville company for $11,027. This price includes in trade two old Reliance trucks now owned by the county. The committee also purchased from the Highway Service corporation of Milwaukee two Wausau snow plows for these trucks for $1,400. The plows and trucks are to be delivered by Dec. 1. Recently the county purchased a new Monarch caterpillar tractor and plow and two cars, approximately five miles.

Eleven truck companies had submitted bids on trucks ranging in size from 3 to 7 tons. Prices ranged from $3,555 on the three-ton truck to $9,075 on 7 1/2 ton trucks. The last price also included the old Reliance trucks in trade. One company submitted a bid of $12,256 for 3 1/2 ton trucks, including Wausau plows.

The trucks purchased from the Clintonville company are 4-ton trucks, however, and the committee persuaded the Clintonville company to give the county 4-ton trucks at the same price it had submitted on 3 1/2-ton trucks.

Frank Appleton, highway commissioner, said Tuesday the department now has 13 trucks, five tractors and 17 miles of snow fence. The system used last year, of stationing trucks and tractors at strategic points in the county, is planned by the committee this year, Mr. Appleton said. The committee, at a meeting in the near future, will decide where the equipment will be stationed and instruct Mr. Appleton to start setting out snow fence.

SOVIET RULE FOR U. S. AIM OF RED GROUP

Congressional Probers Told of "Proletariat Dictatorship" Plans

San Francisco—(P)—Having heard Communists testify their objective is the overthrow of the American government and substitution of Soviet rule, the congressional committee investigating red activities continued its inquiry here today.

William J. Simons, described by other witnesses as a Communist leader, took the stand yesterday in fiery mood and told how his followers planned to establish a "dictatorship of the proletariat." He described his visit to Moscow three years ago as a delegate to the Fourth International and said workers were far better off in Russia than in this country.

Simons attempted to read a prepared statement but was stopped by Representative Carl G. Bachmann of West Virginia, who warned the witness against attempting to make "speeches."

"To which flag do you pledge allegiance, that of this country or that of the Soviet union?" Bachmann asked.

"It is not a question of flags," Simons shouted. "It is a question of the system they represent. I stand for the workers against the bosses—the Soviet system for the workers against the American system of the bosses."

Simons charged the committee had started its investigation "so you can go back to Washington and pass more laws against those trying to aid the workers." He said the Communists would bring about a change in government "when the workers feel it is time to take over the system and assume command under leadership of the Communist party."

"Would the workers use force and violence if necessary?" asked Bachmann.

"The workers will decide," Simons replied.

The witness also charged the committee had evaded the unemployment question and was opposing Communists who sought to "alleviate" conditions.

Mike Daniels and Maurice Rappoport, Communists, reiterated many of Simons' statements on taking the stand. They refused to take the oath, saying they believed in no duty.

ELECTRICAL BRAIN CONTROLS PUMPING OF U. S. CRUDE OIL

New Developments in Pipeline Transportation Revealed at Exposition

Tulsa, Okla.—(P)—New developments in pipeline transportation of crude oil, which has grown until the underground carriers extend into every section of the United States, were explained in papers prepared for delivery today before the petroleum division, American Society of Engineers, attending the International Petroleum exposition.

Two outstanding achievements—the fully automatic pumping of oil by a system of electrically operated and remotely controlled pumping stations and date for determining temperature variations of oil flowing through a pipe line—were described.

An "electrical brain" controls a pipe line pumping station, erected at a cost of $90,000 by the society on the grounds of the petroleum exposition. Hydrostatic pressure exerted by oil in various tanks is communicated to the "brain" in the pump station which then "learns" from fluid from one tank should be run into another in which the level is low. A break in either feeding or emptying lines would be answered, promptly by a cessation of flow through the defective line.

The pumping station, which is being used as a permanent experimental laboratory to complete the development of automatic pumping, already has proved that automatic pumping stations may be controlled automatically, according to a paper presented by J. B. Ford, J. B. McMahon and T. D. Williamson, members of a special research committee of the society.

DECREASES LOSSES
The paper explained how the automatic pumping of oil would tend to lessen losses resulting from broken lines because of the vigilance of the "electrical brain" in detecting when any thing goes wrong and then acting to shut off the flow. The prediction was made that the next few years would see numerous automatic installations.

Operation of the automatic pump station has attracted much attention from the multitude of oil men attending the petroleum exposition, in connection with the engineering group is meeting.

How to forecast the amount of change in the volume in the volume of oil for temperature variations in long distance pipe line transmission and thus ascertain data on the contraction of the lines which would aid in the prevention of failures caused by lines pulling apart at the joints, was discussed in a paper by Bert Martin and William G. Reltzel, engineers for the Sinclair Pipe Line company.

Temperature observations, covering a period of one year on oil streams flowing through mid-continent pipe lines were presented for use of engineers in allowing for contraction when designing a pipe line system.

URGENT TOWNSPEOPLE TO BUY TICKETS FOR ARTIST SERIES

Most Desirable Seats Will Be Gone After Oct. 15; Committee Says

With 800 student tickets for the community artist series due for reservation on Oct. 15, the ticket selling committee urges townspeople to purchase their season tickets before that date, as after that time most of the desirable locations will be marked off the board.

The committee announced Tuesday morning that 350 season tickets must still be sold. Appleton persons before the financial success of the series will be assured.

MANY APPLETON BOYS MAKE USE OF "Y" BUILDING

Local Association Sponsors High School and Activity Clubs

Nearly 400 Appleton boys annually come under direction of Appleton Y. M. C. A., according to C. C. Bailey, boys' work secretary. The association offers them a place to spend spare hours, a place for sports, a place where they can sit around and read magazines, play games, and join various kinds of clubs.

The boys' department started its campaign a week ago and will report tonight at the jump off dinner for regular workers. Many of the boys also will work with the men during the men's campaign.

Appleton Hi-Y club with a membership of 40 boys is one of the groups sponsored by the boys' department. It has been likened to the luncheon clubs of the city in its work with the high school students and has sponsored book sales, a state older boys' conference, and a Fox river valley older boys' conference, besides weekly discussion meetings.

The association also sponsors two clubs in the sophomore class of the boys. The program is similar to the Hi-Y program and has for its purpose developing leadership in high school boys. All clubs are under supervision of men of high moral character and well known as leaders.

Among the various activity clubs of the department are the Century club with a membership of 60 boys who regularly make hikes to various places in the district and study nature, identify trees, birds, flowers, collect birds' nests and study characteristics of birds. The club also gives the youngsters an opportunity to spend time in the open and learn to take care of themselves.

A wood carving class last year had a membership of 30 boys who built model ships under direction of an association secretary. An aviation class made model airplanes. There were 12 boys in the club.

Older boys in the city played in a basketball and softball league sponsored by the boys department. It is estimated that about 104 boys played in the basketball league which had nine teams, and that several hundred others attended the games. The winning team in the league was permitted to meet at Green Bay Older Boys team.

The older boys softball league saw 115 boys taking part in the sport, games being played on the "Y" tennis court and completed before the regular playground league opened. The teams were "gangs" groups from all over the city. There also was a hockey league during the winter and several tennis tournaments.

Visiting high school athletes teams finds the Y. M. C. A. a good place to spend odd moments. Mr. Bailey pointed out, and all spend several hours around the association when visiting here.

REV. UTTS SPEAKER AT KIWANIS MEETING

The Rev. L. D. Utts, new pastor of All Saints Episcopal church, will be the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club Wednesday noon at Conway hotel. Prof. John Roes Frampton has charge of the program.

FARMERS TOLD HOW AND WHEN TO PICK CROPS OF APPLES

County Agent Also Gives Advice on Storage of Crop Over Winter

Gus Sell, county agent, last week issued a bulletin to farmers advising them on how and when to harvest their apple crops.

Apples should be harvested when they are mature but hard and while they still offer some resistance to picking. Mr. Sell said. Most of the common varieties should be picked as soon as a small percentage of the sound apples begin to drop. This does not apply, however, when the drops are wormy as the apples always fall before the rest of the crop is ready for picking.

The crop should be carefully picked with stems and they should be laid in a pile or basket. Dropping them bruises and reduces their storage life. If apples are picked while warm they should be left outside over night, protected from the rain, and placed in storage next day. After picking apples should not be exposed to the sun as such exposure reduces storage life, also. Only hand picked fruit, which is not overripe, should be stored. Windfalls, wormy or injured apples should never be stored. The apples should be stored in a place which is cool or which can be cooled by opening doors and windows overnight. Storage places should be thoroughly cleaned before use. A coat of whitewash helps considerably, Mr. Sell said.

All apples should be stored separately from root crops. Apples should be packed in baskets or boxes with partly open covers. The containers may be piled on top of each other and they should be kept on a slatted floor which with either moist ground or sand underneath. Cellars with concrete floors are too dry for successful long time storage. If ground or sand floors are not available moisture may be obtained by sprinkling the floor.

Medical Authorities Say: "Look to Your Blood"

Blood disorders are of many varieties. Possibly impoverished blood or a disorder due to infected blood are being depleting your strength and happiness. Thousands of men and women are not getting all out of life that they should, due to the insidious action of the poisons in the blood. Blood is the life stream — it penetrates all parts and organs of the body. If it is impure, trouble is likely to occur in any organ or part of our bodies. # New Schmiede Bill Aims At "Chain Banking Evil"

AUTHOR WILL OFFER IT AT NEXT SESSION

Measure Would Stop Firms from Holding Over 10 Per Cent of Bank Stock

A bill designed to strike at the root of the "chain banking evil" as it has been termed by Progressive Republicans, has been prepared by Oscar J. Schmiede, assemblyman from the first Outagamie district, and will be presented to the state legislature at the January session.

Mr. Schmiede was renominated at the primary election by a large majority over two opponents. He has no Democratic opposition in the final election in November. He also is assistant district attorney.

Briefly, Mr. Schmiede's bill hits at chain banks through these provisions:

It prohibits domestic corporations from holding more than 10 per cent of the stock of any bank and provides that if any firm does hold more than this amount that the excess must be disposed of by Feb. 1, 1932.

It prohibits any foreign or domestic corporation from owning more than 10 per cent of the stock of any state bank and provides if any corporation does hold more than this amount that it must dispose of it before Jan. 1, 1932. This section further provides that all corporations owning stock in any state bank must register the shares in their own name.

It prohibits the depositing of state funds in any state or national bank which is controlled by a holding company.

It provides that state banks cannot count as reserve funds any deposits which are kept in a chain bank.

"These measures are believed to go as far as permitted by state legislation to curb chain banks," Mr. Schmiede said. "In fact, the provision that corporations now holding more than 10 per cent of the stock of any bank shall dispose of the excess by Jan. 1, 1932, may be unconstitutional. All other provisions of the bill, however, I believe are clearly constitutional."

REPRESENTS AMENDMENT

This measure, however, represents an amendment to the state banking laws and Mr. Schmiede pointed out that it would be necessary to secure an affirmative vote of three-fifths of all members for passage, that is, 30 senators and 60 assemblymen.

Mr. Schmiede pointed out that it is practically impossible to control the activities of national chain banks, but he said he thought that the provisions of his measure prohibiting the depositing of state funds in such banks would reach those institutions.

One of the hardest blows aimed at chain banks is the fourth clause of his bill which would make state banks unable to count as reserve funds deposits with chain banks.

State laws now provide that all state banks must maintain a certain reserve fund. Many banks deposit these reserve funds with large banks, especially at Milwaukee, and these banks are connected with chains. Passage of this law would mean many state banks would be forced to withdraw these funds from the large chain banks and deposit them elsewhere.

Five Held For Postal Fraud In Fake Matrimonial Ring

Indianapolis—(AP)—How an alleged fake matrimonial ring lured victims throughout the south, middle west for more than $6,000 was revealed by federal investigators today following the arrest of five persons on charges of postal fraud.

Using photographs of two women members of the ring as "bait," the agency obtained sums ranging from a few dollars to $1,700 from its victims, postal inspectors said. Operations were carried on from Dayton, Ohio; Muncie, Ind.; Covington, Ky.; Marion, Ind.; Lebanon, Ind.; and Crawfordsville, Ind., in turn, the investigators revealed.

FIND CLEWS TO IDENTITY OF DEAD WOMAN

Police Hunt Man Reported to Have Been Her Companion in North Woods

Rhineland—(AP)—Pathologists and police seeking to identify the decomposed body of a woman found last week in the Lac du Flambeau Indian reservation today indicated it might be that of Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett, formerly of Woodside, N. Y.

Mrs. Hackett, widow of a secret service operative under President Roosevelt, was last heard from while on a reported honeymoon in Wisconsin with George W. Perry, who, according to Chicago police, married her after striking up an acquaintance through a want ad. Wisconsin authorities are seeking Perry.

Dr. Edward L. Miloslavich, Milwaukee pathologist who is making an examination of the woman's body, said he believed the woman to be between 35 and 40 years of age. Mrs. Hackett was 42. While his examination is not finished, he said it was possible the dead woman might be Mrs. Hackett. He expects to complete the identification by the tenth.

Sgt. Michael Phelan of the Chicago bureau of missing persons said Mrs. Hackett's sudden marriage to Perry June 16, was known only to a few persons.

"She answered a want ad advertising for a lady companion to drive to California with all expenses paid, according to my information," Phelan said. "In this manner she met Perry. He urged her to marry him. I am informed and she borrowed $500 to help finance their honeymoon. On June 22, they left Chicago in the bride's automobile."

After the marriage, Phelan said, Perry was seen in Cleveland where he met his first and legitimate wife, Mrs. Kathryn Gebhart Perry.

"Perry told his first wife the baggage belonged to an aunt in Chicago, Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett," Phelan said. "He remained there until Aug. 12, when he drove away. Mrs. Perry the first became curious about the aunt. She found a roll of film among the baggage left behind, had it developed and beheld pictures of Perry, Mrs. Hackett and Indians."

Dr. Miloslavich said the woman had bobbed hair and was about five feet tall. She was dressed in a green slip-over sweater, a silk dress with black and tan waist and dark brown skirt.

NOT SHOT OR STABBED

Milwaukee—(AP)—The woman whose body was found last week beside an abandoned logging road in the Flambeau Indian reservation was not shot, stabbed or crushed, but she might have been strangled to death in the opinion of Dr. Edward L. Miloslavich, Milwaukee pathologist, who examined the disintegrated body. The woman's clothing and skull were brought here by Dr. Miloslavich.

Authorities are endeavoring to identify the body as that of Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett of Chicago, and Woodside, L. I., who last June married George W. Perry, who met Mrs. Hackett through a want ad. It was learned that a Milwaukee dentist had done some work for Mrs. Hackett, but efforts to have the dentist go to Dr. Miloslavich's office to view the teeth were unavailing, the dentist claiming he was "too busy." Dr. Miloslavich was not at his office and his attendant would not permit the skull to be taken to the dentist's office.

"Y" SEEKING 1,200 MEMBERS IN 15TH DRIVE

from Mr. and Mrs. Judson G. Rosebush, a sum of $25,000 to be subscribed at Appleton people would subscribe $100,000.

Mr. Rosebush spoke for a few minutes following Mr. Harwood's talk and gave a toast to Mr. Harwood for his work in the association to Mr. Werner for his efforts, pointing out that now the association building and property involves an investment of more than $250,000.

Features of the new lobby membership for boys were outlined by W. E. Smith, chairman of the boys' work committee of the association who also reported on the results of the boys' campaign for members which will be continued throughout the men's drive.

FIRST SPEAKER RETURNS

The speaker at the Y. M. C. A. dedication services 15 years ago was Dr. Elias Evans, now president of Ripon college. Last night he again was the speaker and pointing out that the Y. M. C. A. "is a house by the side of the road and a friend to man," asked the workers to go out and accomplish the purpose of the drive so that the association might continue its "incidental and accidental ministries along the highway of life."

Naming a half dozen or more men nationally and internationally known, Dr. Evans pointed out that it is the sideline activities of these men that made them famous rather than their regular occupations.

He likened the Y. M. C. A. membership campaign to the sideline activities of these great men of whom he had spoken, remarking that he pitied the businessman, the doctor, the teacher, and the preacher who were so busy and so deeply involved in their own work that they had no consideration for the interests of others.

TAKE IN MORE AREA

Lack of moral purpose, definite aim in life and fixedness of purpose accounts for the narrowness, Dr. Evans said, reminding the group that the average person fails to take in a large enough area of life in his field of accomplishments.

Many industries today owe their success not to their recognized products, Dr. Evans said, but to their success with by-products. And so in society, the value of a man to society is recognized by his by-products.

In closing his address Dr. Evans recalled for the workers the numerous references to quotations in the New Testament which he counts incidents "as Jesus passed along," incidents which Dr. Evans considered incidental and accidental ministries along the wayside.

Dr. Evans then recited the poem written in part as "The Road and a House by the Side of the Road and a Friend of Man," and closed with the remark that the Y. M. C. A. is a house that stands by the side of the road and is a friend to man, with incidental and accidental ministries as its great purpose.

Workers in the membership drive will meet at 6:15 tonight at the association building for the first check on the day's activities.

Peter Hermans, arrested with Besaw on charges of receiving stolen property, also pleaded guilty and was placed on parole for a year.

The two were arrested by Police Chief R. H. McCarthy. A part of the loot was recovered at Hermans' home. The chief said Hermans drove Besaw to the filling station and later picked him up with the loot after the theft was committed.

Record Bag Of Prehistoric Fossils Found By Andrews

Peiping, China—(AP)—Bringing a record bag of prehistoric fossils, the American anthropologist, returned here today after five months of intensive work in the Gobi desert.

In the opinion of Walter C. Grainger, chief paleontologist, who directed operations in this field, this year's collection is the biggest and scientifically most important made by the expedition since its first explorations in 1922.

Fossils representing about 75 different species, several of them new to science, have been found and are expected to throw much additional light upon the evolution and dispersal of animal life millions of years ago. No human remains thus far have been discovered, but Dr. Andrews does not consider that fore-runners of the Peking man yet may be found in the Gobi region.

"We still think," said Dr. Andrews, "that we are allowed to continue our investigations we shall find traces of primitive man. But this can be done only by thorough exploration." He announced today that negotiations are going forward with the Chinese authorities for continuation of the work next year.

One of the most important finds of the expedition, apart from the mastodons discovered in a bog and reported on July 25, was a fossil deposit yielding the teeth, jaws, skulls and other parts of a coryphodon, belonging to the amblypoid order, which in general appearance was somewhat like a long legged hippopotamus to which, however, it bears no scientific relationship.

The party also found the skulls and jaws of a chalicotheres, belonging to the same group as the horse, rhinoceros and tapir, but much more primitive than the type previously found in Europe and America. This was a hooved animal in every way, but with a great claw instead of a flattened hoof.

HYDROGEN BLAMED FOR R-101 LOSS

Engineers Believe Fewer Lives Have Been Lost With Helium

Copyright 1930, by Cons. Press

New York—While withholding definite conclusions as to the cause of the wreck of the British dirigible R-101 in France, aeronautical engineers here agreed today that all the evidence indicated that the use of hydrogen instead of helium contributed heavily to the loss of life.

The first reports that smoking on board caused the explosion have apparently been disproved, and it is now clear that the explosion instantly followed the crash. Expert testimony is that with the non-inflammable helium in the ship's envelope this could not have happened.

Commander J. C. Hunsicker of the United States navy reserve, was quite positive that the loss of life would have been much less if helium had been used.

It is recalled, however, that German dirigibles, floated with hydrogen, have been struck by lightning during and since the world war with no resulting explosion. Dr. Hunsicker and other German dirigible experts have insisted that, with ordinary precautions, the fire danger from hydrogen is negligible.

American experts, however, have insisted that the view and the army and navy have concentrated on refining and developing the limited supplies of helium, derivative of oil gases in worked-out wells in Texas. America has virtually a monopoly on the world supply of helium.

Manitowoc—(AP)—Ill health today was blamed for the suicide of Obadiah D. Reece, 57. He slashed his throat with a sharp knife. Three children and the widow survive.

WIRE-TAPPING CHARGE MADE IN NEBRASKA

Chairman Complains Attempts Being Made to Hide Inquiry Results

Washington—(AP)—Again charged with wire-tapping, this time in connection with its Nebraska inquiry, the senate campaign funds committee planned today a program for further investigations.

Demanding before it for a study of expenditures in six states and Chairman Nye expected to confer with Senator Patterson, Republican, Missouri and Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, to determine how these requests are to be met.

In response to the latest accusations against the committee, made by Charles E. Matson of Lincoln, Neb., in a letter to Vice President Curtis, Nye entered a denial and complained of a "persistence in dragging a red herring across the trail to conceal the worth while things resulting from the committee's investigation."

The chairman said he would return to Nebraska before election and would then subpoena Matson. The trip to Nebraska is planned to determine the source of money spent in behalf of George W. Norris, the Broken Bow grocer who filed but was not permitted to run for the Republican nomination against Senator George W. Norris.

THE CUBAN SITUATION

An interesting situation exists in Cuba, where Gen. Machado has been authorized by the congress to suspend constitutional guarantees for a term of 20 days in the interest of public order. The opposition to the Machado regime is strong, but whether it is formidable enough to precipitate a revolution no one can yet say. Establishment of a presidential dictatorship by suspending the constitutional guarantees removes for all practical purposes legal opposition to the government. Whatever opposition continues will be revolutionary.

The attitude of the United States in this state of affairs is of importance. Fortunately its policy is well determined both by precedent and the Platt amendment, originally an amendment to an army appropriation bill in our own congress and subsequently adopted by the Cuban constitutional convention as an appendix to the Cuban constitution. It establishes the right of the United States to intervene "for the preservation of Cuban independence" and for "the maintenance of a government adequate for the protection of life, property and individual liberty." Elihu Root, then secretary of war, defined this amendment to mean that "intervention will only take place to protect the independence of the Cuban republic, or when a veritable state of anarchy exists within the republic." We have once been compelled to intervene by virtue of this authority in the interval between the overthrow of the Palma government in 1906 and the unsuccessful attempt of the revolutionists to set up a government in its place. A state of anarchy did in fact exist and we were justified in this intervention.

The United States, following this precedent, will not intervene in the present crisis to sustain the Machado regime. This regime can not count upon the American government to protect it against an uprising. The Platt amendment does not destroy the right of revolution. A revolution to obtain recognition and acceptance at Washington must with reasonable promptness set up a new regime capable of maintaining order. Unless a revolutionary movement which overthrows the existing regime is strong enough to take over the government with popular support and maintain order and a responsible government, the situation will be construed as being one of anarchy and the United States will intervene.

PRICE OF EDUCATION

Once again there is an aerial disaster to record, this time the blowing up and burning of the British dirigible R-101 enroute from England to Karachi, India. The origin or cause of the wreck, which cost 46 lives, is not known. The weight of opinion seems to be that it was flying too low and struck the side of a hill. This is the fourth major airship disaster for Great Britain. The first dirigible was struck by lightning, the second was wrecked in a gale and the third was lost by an explosion. The Germans seem to be more successful with their zeppelins.

These aerial catastrophes must all be set down as the price of learning how to fly. They are the results of experiments and trials against unknown and as yet unconquered forces. Those who lose their lives in them, whether navigators or passengers, are the pioneer martyrs of invention and discovery that reach into unathomable fields. Flying is still perilous. Nothing is certain about it at any time or in any form. The remarkable performances of the Graf Zeppelin have led many to believe that the dirigible was a better means of air transportation.

The destruction of the R-101 is another set-back to this type of navigation. In time non-explosive and non-inflammable gas may be developed. In time precautions may be taken that will protect ships against storms and lightning, although at present these safeguards seem to be a long ways off. Nevertheless, great progress is being made in aeronautics and the future is filled with promises of extraordinary achievement.

RUSSIAN WHEAT RAID

General information is to the effect that Soviet Russia is engaged in wholesale dumping of wheat and other produce. One explanation is that the government is on the verge of bankruptcy and must have cash at any price. It is also said to be the policy of the Soviet to undersell the world on commodities it is capable of producing in quantity. There is no reason why it should not be able to do this, provided the nations to which it sells will consent. In other words, if they will let down the bars to dumping they can expect to see Russian products replace those now being produced in America and Europe. Of course it cannot be to the entire exclusion of competitive products for the simple reason that Russia cannot supply the entire world's need. It cannot, for instance, raise enough wheat to supply world requirements and it is the same with other raw materials and manufactures.

Nevertheless, Russia can raise this production to the point where it will be a serious factor in undermining and depressing profitable international trade. The Russian laborer is to all intents and purposes a slave. He has nothing to say about his wages, which are barely enough to keep him alive. A former vice president of the Amtorg Trading corporation, the official Soviet trading company in the United States, has just testified to the Fish congressional committee investigating communism as to the terrible living conditions in Russia and the degradation of the worker and the peasant. Incidentally he tells how this trading corporation is used for espionage and to acquire information concerning American army and naval defenses.

No one in Russia can make any profit out of production except the government, together with the army of bureaucrats and politicians who surround it and live off of its graft. Gradually but surely the noble experiment in Russia is being forced out into the open. It is going to be shorn of its mysticism, its chicanery and its duplicity. It cannot live without commercial relations with other nations and where it cannot obtain these by fraud it is going to attempt to do so by force. In due time the issue will have to be met by the United States and other governments against which the destructive aims of bolshevism are directed. It is a problem in the solution of which the major nations ought to unite. The Soviet will attempt to play one against the other by favoritism, but if they will stand together they can break up the conspiracy and keep Russia in the place her program and her institutions merit.

NEED PEACE FOR PROSPERITY

Only a war, declares Mussolini, can prevent the world's economic recovery within three years. Italy is working for peace because it wants prosperity. Such reassuring words from the fire-eating Mussolini are unusual but gratifying. There is much loose talk about war these days. Travelers returning from abroad interpret the restlessness and anxiety they find in foreign lands as dissatisfaction leading straight to war. There may be a big war in the offing. There is friction among nations and among different parties within nations; sparks fly occasionally and one of them might set off a war. Such things have happened before, as fairly recent history shows.

Yet if the World war taught anything at all, it taught that war no longer gets any nation anywhere. Victors and conquered have suffered alike since the end of the great conflict. The virtuous line of demarcation between aggressors and defenders that seemed so clear to all concerned at the time has become blurred now. Individuals who felt acutely patriotic in the war years are inclined to wonder sometimes now what all the shooting was for. If another war comes off before the last one is a generation or two old, then evolution has a long way to go before the civilized groups of the human race may be credited with as much intelligence as they think they possess.

WE WISH that things like the R-101 disaster wouldn't have to happen... aside from the tragedy element, it is a serious sort of a set-back for aviation... and it dims the much-earned applause for the 16 year old had who recently set a new cross-continent flight record... a couple of more nations are getting peeved at Russia... the soviet must behave itself a little longer—it isn't strong enough to make faces at the world just yet... we were surprised to hear Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago talk over the radio the other night... no, we didn't listen very long... but we're confident that he didn't say much...

Well, Just Listen to All the Harmony

Hooray for the Republican-Democrats. Bob LaFollette is going to fend the Democrats out west a hazy. When Bob's name appears on a ballot, he's listed as a Republican.

Prosperity is back—at least they're keeping the wolf from the door. Up in Rhineland a farmer shot one which weighed 102 pounds.

"Always in All Ways" is an attractive new number.

Houston, Texas and Atlanta, Gawjoh, are having an honest-to-gosh southern battle over which is the larger city. They're both fighting for the position of the South's second city. Atlanta, it seems, is trying to have the annexation of several formerly independently governed towns added to its census population. Houston, of course, doesn't like the idea. At the same time, though, greater New York actually is larger than greater London, nobody is protesting London's claim to the largest population in the world. It all depends who and where you are and what you want.

The height of something is to hear a dyed-in-the-wool radio sports announcer reading market reports.

Today's Tin Medal Awards

The person, who when trying to convey a message on the phone, and whose words are hard to separate, gets peeved because screaming doesn't seem to help either.

Last week-end's football: Lawrence needn't shed tears over the track meet at Madison Saturday. And the lads who said Wisconsin would be easier for the Vikings than Marquette can now eat their words—syllable by syllable. We have a hunch that the Packers will not have another undefeated season. There were holes in their line Sunday.

Today's Anniversary

BATTLE KINGS MOUNTAIN

On October 7, 1780, a little force of Americans, calling itself the "Army of the West," attacked the British at Kings Mountain, a high ridge on the boundary line between North and South Carolina, and scored a remarkable victory, one of the most heartening of the Revolutionary War, the 150th anniversary of which will be celebrated on the old battlefield this year.

Just before this triumph the Colonists were passing through what historians called the darkest period of the Revolution. The British had been victorious in the south, the republic bankrupt and our soldiers grumbling because of poor pay and threatening to revolt. The lower third of the morale of the American troops, Benedict Arnold, an able general, turned traitor and joined the British.

It was at this time that the British Major Ferguson was sent with 1,100 men to cut off a body of patriots then retreating from Georgia to the highlands of North Carolina. Ferguson penetrated too far into the mountains and was met by a swarm of backwoodsmen.

In the ensuing battle of Kings Mountain Ferguson was killed and those of his men who were not killed or wounded were taken prisoners. This victory proved to be the turning point of the war in the south. A new army was soon raised for the south and placed under the command of Nathaniel Greene.

A TRIANGLE OF SCIENTIFIC PROGRESS AND REVISION OF TECHNIC.

In routine practice there are few cases more trying to all concerned than fractures of the femur (thigh bone) either at some point in the shaft of the bone or in the neck, known to the lay as the hip. The standard method of treatment for such fractures has always been and still is what doctors call "extension," a kind of prolonged pulling of the patient's leg, ordinarily maintained by means of an arrangement of bandages, straps, weights and pulleys; sometimes in the more complicated cases by means of plaster casts; and now and then by means of surgical operation.

I suppose every medical student hears something about "suspension" treatment, perhaps even learns that this method was notably employed and advocated by the Hodge, but it is all pretty complicated and the young doctor generally sticks to the older and simpler Buck's extension when he is confronted with a case of broken thigh bone. This method has the sanction of universal use; all doctors recognize and understand it; it is pretty terrible for the luckless patient, but nevertheless it is highly conventional, and so the somewhat esoteric Hodge suspension method receives little consideration from the rank and file of the profession, in household practice or in hospital. Yet the suspension method of treatment is unquestionably more effective than the old Spanish custom. Why, then, is it not the method of choice in the routine treatment of such fractures? Well, I've indicated the reason; it is not accepted because on casual observation the method seems too complicated and difficult, whereas in actual use it is much simpler than the crude weights and pulleys of the common method. Not only does this suspension method give the patient more comfort and freedom but it actually splints the fracture more effectively than any weight and pulley gadget can, and for elderly or feeble patients it offers a better chance for recovery. Some day, perhaps, when the course of study to make a doctor is quite as obstinate length y thrown out all the nonsense the highbrows have succeeded in getting into it, the Hodge suspension principle will be restored to every day practice and people with broken femur will get better treatment than they get at present. One has to go back to the old masters for a description of Hodge's suspension treatment for fracture of the femur—"Surgery," Park's Treatise on Surgery published in 1896, tho a weighty word in behalf of the method was uttered by Dr. Joseph A. Blake after his return from France where his work in the treatment of war wounds was outstanding and added new luster to the fame of American surgery.

In 1908 Dr. Geo. S. Brown published a paper on the Hodge method in Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics (the May number), and in 1915 I published a paper about it in International Clinics. Both of these are illustrated with drawings and photographs, but it will take more than the combined efforts of Drs. Park, Blake, Brown and the egotist who conducts this column to persuade any great number of plodding practitioners to revise their notions or modify their technic in the treatment of fractures of the femur. The rank and file are quite as obstinate in sticking to archaic treatment of such fractures as it is in refusing to recognize the value of diathermy extirpation of the tonsils for handicapped patients.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Old Does Have Edge on Young Does.
When I asked you to refer me to a good doctor in our town who could remove my tonsils by the diathermy method which you so highly praised, you told me you did not know of one. I have found one, and I wish you could see my throat—it's as clean as the I had never had a tonsil. The doctor who gave me the treatment has his offices at — and his name is — and I think he

The Tinymites

By Hal Cochran

THE farm yard miss said, "Hello, boys. Say, do you hear that funny noise. Well, that's a great big flock of geese. They're crying for a meal. I'm going to feed them very soon and that will hush their quacking tune." Then Clowzy said, "Gee, if they're hungry, I know how they feel."

This made the girl smile. She replied, "Mr. if you're hungry, come inside our little home and you shall have a bit of home-made bread. I made the bread myself and I will be real pleased if you will try a slice. And then my little flock of geese will be fed."

"Say, this is just as fine as silk," said Clowzy. "I love bread and milk." Twas fun to watch the Tinymites enjoy the little meal. When they had finished, Clowzy cried, "Come on, now, let's run right outside. I want to run around the farm 'cause that's just how I feel."

They all went out and fed the geese, which made their funny quacking cease. Well, Clowzy took one in his arms and petted it a while. And then he loudly shouted, "Gee, I think he's very fond of me. I'll bet that I could train him." "Course this one told me you did not know of one. I have found one, and I wish you could see my throat—it's as clean as the I had never had a tonsil. The doctor who gave me the treatment has his offices at — and his name is — and I think he

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — After more than 30 years of continuous service in congress—seven terms as representative and three terms as senator—Sen. Joseph Eugene Ransdell of Louisiana has met political defeat.

On the eve of his 72nd birthday, this mild-mannered, kindly and modest old man, who enjoys immense personal popularity on Capitol hill, was beaten at the polls by the youthful, fighting governor of Louisiana—Huey P. Long.

Senator Ransdell's departure from the senate removes one of that body's most picturesque figures.

Though for the greater part of the time he was content to sit by and look on, his grayish-white "chin whiskers" and frock coat made it easy to pick him out on the floor. It was not often that he entered debate, but when he did arise from his seat on the left side of the aisle he was heard.

His voice, though rather thin, carried easily. "His 'chin whiskers' wiggle in perfect time to his words."

FLOODS AND HEALTH

His years in congress are marked by a causal of two causes which he close to his heart—flood control and creation of a national health institute.

The first commanded his interest because it was of paramount interest to his native state. From the day he first took his seat in the house in 1899, Senator Ransdell made flood control his specialty. And he worked persistently for the cause down through the years—until 1929, when he saw his efforts rewarded by the passage of the national flood control act, providing that the federal government take charge and pay the cost of flood control in the Mississippi valley.

His national institute of health was his legislative hobby. During the latter years of his senate career, he worked unceasingly for the project. This year he realized his dream when the bill finally came near." The girl replied, "I'm glad you came and wish that you could stay." Then off they went and soon they found a river that wound round and round. They went down to the bank of it to see what was afloat. "Oh, look!" cried Clowzy. "I see clothes hanging out to dry in wind that blows." And then the Travel Man explained, it was a laundry boat.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

New York—They are talking of tearing down the Sixth avenue "L" before the new subway is dug, or leaving it up; the matter at this writing was undecided.

Now our interest is a neutral one. Being only an occasional rider, we go for the intimate peeps we get into the home life of tenement people as the rickety cars rattle past unwashed windows.

That view is about the same from any elevated railroad line in town.

One can hardly avoid speculating on the life that lies behind the dingy brick fronts, with their zig-zag fire escapes that seem almost to touch the rumbling structure of the "L."

It must be a rather dingy life, like the buildings. In summer the families lean out the windows in cow-like contemplation of the traffic, the kids playing noisily on the street and the neighbors on the other side.

On Sundays the windows of the humble homes bulge with the bulk of brawny fathers, stripped in comfort for their undershirts, pipes in their mouths.

But it must be old stuff to the housewives, who always seem to be looking, with tired faces, on the never changing row of tracks, under which flows the ugly stream of taxi-cabs and trucks.

Downtown the buildings become lofts, in which women sitting around long tables piece together artificial flowers or other women at sewing machines make overalls or aprons or garments that look like that.

It isn't a pretty sight along the "L." We wouldn't want to see it every day.

JOBLESS AVENUE

Now about the depression, unemployment and so forth—

A survey of Sixth avenue, where most of the employment agencies post their meagre announcements of jobs available, revealed these bits: Panhandlers are more numerous, the oddest of the lot being a man with a child in his arms and his wife, we suppose, at his elbow.

He asks, without the mumbling humility of most, "Can you spare me a little money, sure? I have been out of work all summer." Few are untouched by it.

The sandwich men are carrying signs that advertise, instead of the usual place where one can match his good coat with an extra pair of pants, the names and addresses of pawn brokers.

And a restaurant has in its window this sign:

"If you are out of work we want to help you."

Between the hours of 9 and 12 or 2 and 5 its prices are reduced. A 40-cent plate of food then is offered for 19 cents, a cup of coffee is four cents and a piece of pie six.

SIGNS OF HOPE

The above observations sound discouraging.

Yet a fashionable Fifth Avenue hotel reports that its September business has been better than a year ago, and its bookings for October and November are heavier than for the corresponding months of last year.

It is a very snooty hotel, where prices are fancy, so that its note indicates that people haven't reduced their expenditures for luxury. Perhaps better times really are just around the corner.

PECAN GROWER

The Ransdell bill contemplates a great cooperative scientific organization for health research. Leading experts in every branch of science would be brought together and given opportunity to work under one head to ascertain the cause, preventive and cure of diseases affecting human beings.

Outside the senate, he lived quietly, not caring for the social life Washington affords a man of his rank.

He turned to his 110-acre pecan orchard down in Louisiana, some two miles from the banks of the Mississippi, for recreation. For 30 years he has enjoyed this orchard—propagating new species, building up intimate little stories about various trees which he delights in telling.

From Washington he was in the habit of writing voluminous letters to a trusted old negro on his plantation, outlining just what should be done in his pecan grove.

Have those former South American presidents been signed up to write a syndicated column yet?

NEW YORK ALLOWED FIRST GLIMPSE OF RIVERSIDE CHURCH

Modernist Tendency Is Carried Out in Magnificent Cathedral

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
New York—New York has had its first glimpse inside the Riverside church, magnificent new cathedral of the modernist faith, built by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick. It enshrines new doctrine in an ancient setting. Its arches, its choir stalls, its stained glass windows are gleaned from the centuries, but the great industrialist and the great preacher have stated in stone and steel every article of the modernist credo.

Gothic glories of the great nave, resplendent yet subdued, bring an involuntary genuflection from an Anglican or a Roman, yet in entering he has passed under a great tympanum bearing the sculptured likeness of Albert Einstein—medievalized and graven as if canonized. On this same ring of the tympanum is the figure of Charles Darwin, anathema to William Jennings Bryan and the late Dr. John Roach Straton, fundamentalists of Dr. Fosdick's traditional faith. The images of twelve other great scientists stand behind them. Then, on the third and fourth rings, respectively, are the philosophers and religious leaders, the latter of all faiths and all ages.

RING 72 BELLS
Electric hammers will ring the carillon of 72 bells, the largest in history; electric wires, microphones and amplifiers supplement the scientific acoustics of the church. It houses a bowling alley, a gymnasium, telephone booths instead of confessionals and coffee percolators instead of censers. Its altar, a small, unornamented square of masonry, is lost in the towering sweep of gothic arches. In this sense it seems to speak of a faith which is neither climatic nor mystic, and here is the only break with the great ecclesiastical traditions. All the beauty and aspiration of the great cathedrals are there, but they do not focus on the altar.

In the crypt is a luxurious and beautifully decorated theatre. In the pulpit is a loud speaker, set in with carved representations of the major and minor prophets. In the smaller figures of saints and prophets there is no gold aceticism, no agonizing of the spirit. They are deftly sculptured, benign, modern and assured. The 22-story skyscraper tower surmounting the church is perfectly ecclesiastical with long bastions and heavy ashlar, concealing its skeleton of steel and its electrically operated chimneys. This tower will house all the welfare, recreation and social service departments.

On the seventeenth floor are the administration offices of the church, including the offices of Dr. Fosdick. They are modern business offices—no ancient parchment, no smell of the lamp. Books are there and among them several volumes of de-

Cautions Home Owners Against Poor Wiring

Cooperating with the national fire prevention campaign, Louis Luebke, city electrician, cautions Appleton home owners against poor electrical wiring and offers a few "home remedies" for some of the more frequent electric wire hazards.

First Mr. Luebke suggests a check up of all portable cords in the home, to see if they are in contact with any metals, such as water or steam pipes or radiators, or hooked over nails or metal railings. If the cords are worn they are apt to burn rather than short circuit if they come in contact with metals.

A second suggestion is that fuses be inspected and all fuses over 15 amperes be eliminated.

A mixture of aerials, grounds and power circuit wires to the radio is pointed to as another serious fire hazard by the electrician. A lot of lightning striking a confused bunch of wires would present a far more serious risk, said Mr. Luebke, than if separate wires were struck.

The placement of paper shades too close to the bulb is a practice strictly forbidden, but nevertheless indulged in by many housewives. The temporary location of hand lamps, so they do not come in contact with inflammable materials such as wood and paper, should be guarded against also.

Lights in clothes closets present another possibility for serious fire, points out Mr. Luebke. Silks or other fragile materials brushing the lamp bulb can become ignited quickly and start a disastrous conflagration.

SIX NEW AIRPORTS ESTABLISHED IN STATE

Madison—(P)—Six of 40 Wisconsin airports planned by the National Skyriders, a Wisconsin-Minnesota organization of airplane pilots, under the direction of the American Legion, have been established thus far, according to Lieut. Edward P. Shurick, commander of the Skyriders.

All of the airports are in close proximity to the center of cities and villages. The airports which have been established are at Stanley, Shawano, Athens, Princeton, Wau-paca and Poynette.

Base No. 33 at Shawano will be formally opened on Oct. 18 with an air meet to which all Wisconsin pilots have been invited. Commanders from various American Legion posts in the state will attend the opening to gather ideas for the establishment of other airports.

Dr. Fosdick finds rest and diversion therein. The church, tagged in headlines as "new $4,000,000 church skyscraper," was visited by thousands, admitted by card, when it was unofficially opened Sunday. The chimes will be played for the first time on Christmas eve and the church will be officially opened in February.

RAILROAD FIGHTS PROPOSED CUT IN RATES ON POTATOES

Files Exceptions to Recent Suggested Report of Commission

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington—In an effort to forestall probable reductions in rates on Wisconsin potatoes shipped to Kentucky, the Chicago and Northwestern railroad has filed exceptions to a recent proposed report of the Interstate Commerce Commission reductions.

The D. E. Ryan company of Minneapolis originally complained to the commission that rates charged for the transportation of potatoes from all points in Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, to Kentucky destinations were unreasonable and unduly prejudicial. In his proposed report, Examiner Peterson of the commission upheld the unreasonable charge of Frankfort, Richmond, Berea, Carlisle, Lawrenceburg and Mt. Sterling, Ky. proposed reasonable rates to these points in the future, and recommended awards of reparation for past shipments.

These reductions ranged from 2.5 cents to 15 cents per 100 pounds on Wisconsin potatoes, with Waupaca a representative point among Wisconsin origins.

Peterson found the present rates to Lexington, Paris, Winchester and Georgetown, Ky., to be reasonable.

Now the defending railroad comes forth and urges the entire dismissal of the complaint with no changing of rates, alleging that the Ryan company failed to prove unreasonableness and prejudice and that the examiner went beyond the case in his decision. The railroad charges that the reduction recommendation was based only on the fact that there were lower rates applying to nearby destinations.

The railroad states that these lower rates are not necessarily the proper standard for maximum rates to the south, and adds that a readjustment of rates should not be arbitrarily made because of mere comparisons.

In its exceptions, the Chicago and Northwestern refers only to the proposed reductions on shipments from Wisconsin and Minnesota, and does not mention North and South Dakota. Under Peterson's report, the present rate relationship would be maintained between the four states concerned. Present rates from Minnesota, and North and South Dakota origins are all higher than the Wisconsin rates.

for which she recently had paid $10,000, a diamond set bracelet and a diamond pin.

Several minutes were required meanwhile the robber who held a gun on O'Malley observed the officer's police holster and star.

"You're a copper," snarled the robber.

"No," said O'Malley. "I'm just a chauffeur, but I wear a police star."

"You can't fool me," growled the man with the gun. "You're a cop, and I ought to give you a bullet in the belly."

At this point the two others stepped back to the curb, the robbery finished.

"This cop's got a gun somewhere." They searched the limousine, and found the police revolver on the driver's seat. They sped away.

Officer O'Malley started pursuit. As he whirled the limousine into the street with a roar, the mayor's wife fainted on the sidewalk.

Pedestrians found her there a moment later and carried her to her apartment.

Officer O'Malley maintained the chase for half a mile, then lost the trail.

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

SUE answered the telephone when Jack called, firmly - solved that she would be light and gay and merry, and very - very nice to him, but she wouldn't see him that night.

"Sue?" At the sound of the familiar, deep-toned voice, all Sue's resolves fell. What if Jack thought she didn't want to see him any more? What if he never asked again? Oh, when you took love as a game and played it by rule you didn't know which move to make! After all, she might as well take what the gods sent and be happy. And if she saw Jack, it would give him another opportunity to show him how capricious and worldly-wise she could be.

Jack didn't want to go any place, or do anything. He simply wanted to come to the Merryman house and sit before the cheery-red fire, and talk. He seemed to need comfort and peace.

"He's weary of dancing. He's fed up on ballrooms." Sue thought while she watched him. "He's taken off his dancing pumps and put on his old comfortable shoes. And I'm part of the old shoes. . . I add comfort that's all. But I'll show him. . ."

But Sue didn't have much of an opportunity, for Jack wanted to talk. And he just wanted to watch the firelight.

"There's a content and peace in your house I've never found anywhere else. And you're part of it. It's the type of thing that makes you understand why fellows get homesick."

Sue smiled mistily. "But people are too busy for homes and quietness today. Besides, think of the bills you have to pay. . . the garbage, the ice, the milkman, the gas, and so on."

Jack looked puzzled. "It's true," Sue went on. "Why put yourself all in the mood for this sort of thing when nobody else ever wants it? Oh, of course I adore it. I think it would be grand to have to carry wood for the fireplace and turn the hot water on a little every night so it won't freeze. . ."

"What's the matter, Sue?" Jack's voice was serious and his eyes were questioning. "Nothing at all," Sue flung back her shining dark head. "But why not tell the truth about things?" She wanted him to go. To go quickly. She was afraid that she was going to cry if he didn't. She caught a sob in her throat and she knew her eyes held tears, and she tried to talk away gaily.

"Sue, something is wrong. You've got to tell me!"

"And why you, of all people?" She met her voice light again. "Just because. . . because. . . well, of course it's your affair. . ."

"If ever I need an attorney I'll come to you, Jack," she told him. "But honestly, I'm quite all right. Will you let me tell you a secret? I was getting dreadfully homesick for you, and life's grand again since you've come back!" She laughed softly while she spoke. She heard her father coming. She jumped up, and stooping, kissed Jack lightly on the forehead, as she went to the door to meet her father.

A few hours before she could not have said that. She saw the way in which Jack's eyes followed her. Now it was time to be the old Sue, the sweet and gracious one, so he would not know which she was. So until he left she slipped into the old role. She sensed somehow that it was more effective because she had given it contrast. Love was strange. . . you had to be so nonchalant about it, so gay, and yet so earnest when the time came.

"You're going to break any plans you have for tomorrow night and come with me," Jack insisted when he left.

MONDAY CLUB HEARS TOPIC ON HISTORY

Miss Dorothy Bethurum, of Lawrence college, presented a History of the Shakespearean Period at the first meeting of the Monday club Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. C. Wolter, W. Spencer-st. She stated that the Elizabethan age was the period of greatest dramatic development up to the present time, and that Shakespeare was the outstanding figure of that age.

A 1 o'clock luncheon was served, hostesses being Mrs. J. H. Neller, chairman, Mrs. E. C. Wolter, Mrs. Anna Denton, Mrs. Nellie Ballard, Mrs. J. B. MacLaren, and Mrs. W. H. Kreiss.

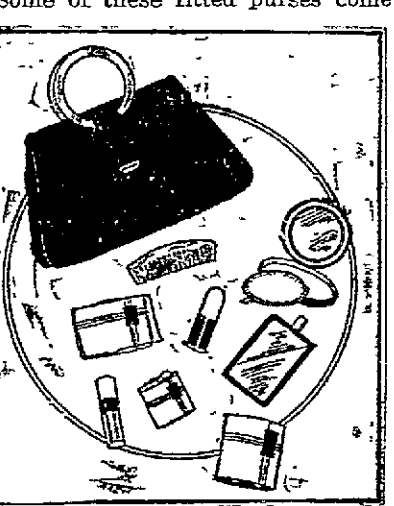

New officers of the club assumed their duties at this time. They are Mrs. F. M. Johnston, president; Mrs. W. E. Smith, vice president; Mrs. Ray Challoner, recording secretary; Mrs. E. A. Boettcher, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. J. H. Neller, treasurer. Roll call was answered by quotations from Shakespeare. About 30 members were present. The next meeting will be Oct. 20, with Mrs. Olin Meade, 424 E. Pacific-st.

AWAIT REPORT ON CLUB DRIVE

WE WOMEN

by Betty Brainerd

LIVING WITH IN-LAWS
"Dear Betty Brainerd:
I am very much in love with my fiancé and in making the arrangement for our marriage I find he expects me to live with his mother. He wants to get a small apartment for the three of us and combine both households.
"I have met his mother several times. She doesn't like me and although I was brought up to be nice to my elders, the thought of living with her in cramped quarters isn't exactly my idea of a harmonious marriage.

"He has spoiled his mother, who demands constant attention from him. I have tried to argue with him but we can't agree. He always reads what you write. What do you think we ought to do?"

I don't know which is worse: mothers who spoil sons, or sons who spoil mothers!

It is unfair to expect a young bride to live with in-laws, especially immediately after the marriage. It takes enough effort and time and quibbles to learn the strange ways of a husband.

A husband becomes an entirely different person from the one who was a suitor. He must be studied and watched and pampered—if there is to be harmony.

Just as a wife is a mystery to a husband and must be fathomed to be understood, even so is the husband. The two people living under one roof are strangely different from the two people who saw each other once or twice or three times a week.

The girl who primped and fussed and prepared for an important "date" for the theatre is more detectable than the wife who rises early in the morning to prepare her husband's coffee and toast.

And the dapper young man who purchased a new tie for his "date" and arrived promptly with candy or flowers is ever so much more different from the husband whose buttons got lost and whose socks constantly need mending.

It is enough for two people to learn each other—without the uncomfortable presence of a third.

If he doesn't want his mother left alone, let him find another relative who has been married for some time. Don't spoil your happiness by subjecting it to the danger of another's interference.

The first years of married life should be kept sacred to the two young people concerned—to iron out their own love spots alone.

BEDTIME

Few children like to go to bed. They will hold up their heavy eyelids with their fingers, fall over on the floor, fast asleep, and still resist going to bed.

Perhaps it is the separation from the family. The child may want to hear and see all that goes on and bed cuts that off completely. It may be that there is an instinctive dread of sleep because sleep robs one of consciousness. It may be that the child is afraid of the darkness, the loneliness of the night. There is usually a different reason for each bed hater.

Sleep is essential for the healthy growth of a child. Long hours of quiet sleep in a darkened room will build a child up when diet and care seem to have no effect. Indeed diet and good care are wasted unless the child has a good night's sleep every night.

What then is to be done with this bed hater who fights every night against going to rest? The best way is to begin with a routine day. An hour is set for rising, for every occupation of the day and for bedtime so that it becomes a matter of course—a habit. That takes a long time to establish and one must be very persistent and very patient about establishing the routine.

Try to make bedtime pleasant. Begin some time before to prepare the child's body and mind for sleep. Slow down all activities and let the house be quiet. Not still quiet, but rather the absence of stimulating noises. Radios, singing, dancing, loud voices, boisterous games must go by the board. The hour before bedtime must be a rather quiet hour.

A bath is the first step. Warm water, a gentle drying, powdering, fresh night clothes, and then a rest in bathrobe and slippers while a story, or a talk, or review of the happy events of the day, or a dreamy planning of some happiness to come, is good preparation for sleep. Then into bed, lights out, windows open, and quiet.

If a child is likely to wake up in a fright, place a light on the head of his bed so that he can turn the light on instantly. The fact that the light is there, that he can use it anytime, gives him courage and if he falls asleep feeling content and competent, he will be likely to sleep well.

It is useless to force a child not to be afraid, to go to bed in the dark, to go to bed alone, if he says he is afraid. Try to discover the cause of the fear and remove that. Plan for bedtime. A happy child sleeps well. It is the unhappy, unhealthy child who is wakeful.

Hints For The Shopper

Even in so small an item as a kitchen table, a bad purchase will bring sorrow and trouble to the shopper.

Kitchen tables should be sturdy. Therefore the joints should be well-constructed, even the joints in the drawers. The bottom of the drawer of the better kitchen tables will be grooved into the sides, rather than merely nailed down. All the edges will be smooth, which the shopper can quickly determine by running her finger across them.

If the top is of porcelain, it is well to remember that the whiter the top the better. A thin coating is most unsatisfactory.

There are many kinds of kitchen tables, although the factors of selection remain the same. A table has recently made its appearance which has wheels, so that it can be moved about, simplifying the problem of taking dishes to and from the sink. Another variety is the sliding leaf kitchen table with a stainless porcelain top, which is especially fitted for small apartments in which furniture must, so to speak, be telescoped.

Rio de Janeiro —(P)—Brazilian scholars see little hope of standardizing the Portuguese language of Brazil with that of the mother country because only one-fifth of the population ignores the many Indian and other extraneous words added to the language here.

For Normal Girlhood

"My daughter Magdalen did not seem to develop as she should. At times she had no pep at all and couldn't get her school work very easily. For four years we doctored her off and on. Then a friend told us how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her years ago, so I got a bottle for Magdalen. Her nerves are quieting, her general health is better and she is now as normal as other girls."—Mrs. J. Barthold, Thompson's Addition, The Dalles, Oregon.

FRANCE PAYS LAST HONORS TO R-101 DEAD

47 Bodies Leave Beauvais for England—30,000 See Caissons Pass

Beauvais, France—(AP)—Thirty thousand people from Beauvais and the countryside hereabout, lined the streets of this little city today as a procession of caissons bearing the 47 bodies of victims of the R-101 disaster were taken from Beauvais city hall to the railroad station.

They were put on a special train which takes them today to Boulogne-sur-Mer where they will be placed aboard the destroyers Tempest and Tribune for the trip across the channel to England and an eternal resting place in a single grave.

Thirty French airplanes and a squadron of British airplanes hovered low over the procession to the railway station, sometimes swooping so low as to scatter the frightened crowds. Troops stood at each side of the cortege's route.

Each caasket was covered with a British and French flag and bouquets of flowers, most of them wild flowers picked by the peasants and placed there by the peasants of the area.

After consultation with the British government it was decided to abandon the plan of a memorial service in the historic cathedral, Saint Pierre, since it was not known to what denomination the victims belonged.

As the coffins were taken from the city hall and placed on the caissons Premier Tardieu of France and Wedgwood Benn, secretary of state for India in the British cabinet, stood with uncovered heads.

Earlier in the morning a storm broke over the town. Hailstones as large as eggs beat at the mourning-bedecked city and forced the thousands who had gathered to participate in the memorial ceremony to seek shelter indoors.

BURIED UNDER FLOWERS

The artillery caissons, which rumbled along to the strains of "God Save the King," ranged from those of the famous French "seventy-seven" to the big siege guns of the type seen during the reign of King XIV. By the time the cortege reached the railway station, where there was an imposing honorary guard, all the caissons were buried with flowers which peasants and others had laid upon them.

Thirty caissons were used, some carrying two caaskets, others carrying just one. After a detachment of cavalry which rode at the head of the cortege Premier Tardieu walked, bareheaded. Behind him came Wedgwood Benn and then a battalion of French infantry. Then the caissons, a company of aeronautes representing lighter-than-air aviation, a company representing heavier than air aviation, two battalions of artillery and a company of the republican guard. Finally there was a great company of French school children, both boys and girls.

Both French and British air squadrons accompanied the special train to the Boulogne landing, the British intending to proceed with the two ships to the British shore, while the French expected only to circle over the departing British ships and return home.

Reports were current locally that the investigating committee had reached some decision as to why the R-101 crashed and was destroyed, but members of the commission would say only that anything to be published must be given out in London. There was evidence of profound depression everywhere.

After the train had left for Boulogne-sur-Mer, Premier Tardieu telegraphed Prime Minister MacDonald as follows:

"We have just paid last honors to the dead of the R-101. All the people of France in heartfelt spontaneity

PRISONER, UNDER DEATH SENTENCE, HAS CHEATED LAW

Archibald Herron's Status as "Lifer" No Longer Questioned

BY PAUL HARRISON

Trenton, N. J.—This is the story of Archibald Herron, who for 22 years has lived happily in the valley of the shadow of death. All that time, in the State Prison here, he has awaited electrocution for a murder committed when he was 49. Now at 71, he knows that he has cheated the chair and is proud of his unprecedented victory.

Since Herron went to the bleak little death house, 91 others have passed through it to oblivion. Several times it seemed that the calm little man, who had boasted that he'd "beat the rap," would have to join them. But, alone and penniless, he squirmed through a maze of technicalities, finally to have the trial judge delay his execution "until further orders."

Then the judge died. So Archie lives and smokes and thinks about the one great triumph of his drab career. He has been forgotten by society and by the state. Even in the prison here, a voluntary hermit in his tiny cell, he is almost a mythical figure.

NO RULING SOUGHT

Archie is grateful for this obscurity. It remains his assurance of safety. If anyone sought a supreme court ruling on his status, it might reveal that the door to the death house and its electrocution chair still stands open for him.

Herron is a murderer. There never was any question of his guilt. In July, 1908, he had been haled before the Rev. Samuel M. D. Prickett, retired minister and acting justice of the peace in Metuchen, near New Brunswick. The charge was disorderly conduct and Herron was jailed. Immediately after his release, he went to Dr. Prickett's home and shot him dead.

On July 28, 1908, Justice James J. Bergen, in Middlesex County court, sentenced Herron to die during the week of September 7. Five days later, writ of error brought a stay of execution and Justice Bergen then named the week of Jan. 25, 1909.

At this time there arose a question of Herron's sanity and a 30-day reprieve came from Governor Fort, who later extended it another month. On March 26, however, the governor ordered that the electrocution take place within 11 days.

QUESTIONED HIS SANITY

But the records show that shortly after this order was issued, another came from Justice Bergen directing an inquiry into Herron's sanity. Prominent "alienists" were brought from New York and Philadelphia and because their findings were inclusive, the trial judge, on June 2, suspended the execution "until further orders."

This was the loophole through which Herron escaped death. For Justice Bergen died in 1925 without issuing any "further orders." And according to New Jersey law, the sentencing jurist must set the week of an electrocution.

"Archie used to tell me that he'd beat the death sentence," said Irving C. Beam, who has been prison clerk for 29 years. "I remember him well, from the time I checked him in. I'd talk to him, sometimes, before the doctors arrived and he always seemed perfectly rational."

"But as soon as the alienists came, he'd start acting queer. He'd scream and cuss like a crazy man. The hearings dragged on for five years and ended in a deadlock. But I never could see but that Archie was as natural as anyone else."

"STAR BOARDER" NOW

"Pretty soon everybody lost interest. The doctors wouldn't agree and nobody felt like stirring up another long investigation. Archie didn't give a bit of trouble. I guess he'll be our star boarder as long as he lives."

The death house only held six men, so Herron was moved to a regular cell block to make room for less fortunate men. But he remained technically a death house inmate and as such, continued to enjoy those few personal privileges granted the condemned. Archie hasn't done a lick of work in 22 years.

He might demand and receive, the better food that is the death house fare. But Archie is a man of simple tastes. He wants only plenty of tobacco and seclusion with his pipe and his thoughts.

NEVER LEAVES CELL

His cell is on the second tier of one of the wings and Herron never struts from it. Col. Edward B. Stone, kindly but "non-coddling" warden, has offered him all the recreational privileges of a lifer, but he scorns them. They say that the only time in twelve years that Archie descended to the ground floor was when his son came to visit him. His wife never came.

Center Keeper Joseph McChesney brought word that Herron did not care about having a visitor, but that the reporter could see him in his cell. This was about half way up the long block of little barred doors. From it, through the big outer windows, Archie can get a few minutes of sunshine and perhaps an occasional glimpse of a bird, or even an airplane.

There was a bunk, a table, sanitary accommodations, a shelf with a package of tobacco and Archie. He is short, stocky and pasty-faced, with a little gray hair and a stubble of moustache. He clutched his pipe, puffed smoke at the ceiling and stared out at his caller with a faint hint of suspicion in his watery blue eyes.

TALKED OF HEALTH

Archie's conversation was monosyllabic and confined almost entirely to his health and his tobacco. "I've had a pretty bad cold," he said, "and I'm just gettin' around to feelin' myself again." No, he didn't read. He had plenty to think about. A man can think up a lot of interesting things in 22 years. Yes, the nights were getting cold. He'd need some more blankets. He'd need some more tobacco, too, the keeper was advised. That was the last package on the shelf.

No, he didn't have much truck with the other prisoners. And it was just as well that nobody come to see him. A man got to be his own best friend in 22 years of this. Sure, he was happy. Good food. No work. A little deaf, but that just kept him from being disturbed. And now he was getting over his cold.

What did he think of being the only man who ever had lived so long under sentence of death—to cheat the chair and to outlive the judge who sentenced him?

Archie smiled. "Pretty good," he said and lay back on his bunk with a sigh of satisfaction.

COMMISSION TO GIVE AWAY ALL ROUGH FISH

Madison—(P)—Rough fish taken in eradication projects in Wisconsin will be given away rather than sold in the future, the conservation commission announced today.

At a recent meeting, the commission decided to distribute rough fish now being taken from Winnebago waters to anyone who will call for them. In previous years the fish were sold for five cents a pound. An average of 180,000 pounds of rough fish have been taken from the waters each year, the commission said.

Eradication work will be started in northern lakes soon, it was announced.

Scientists at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology have invented apparatus that forecasts thunderstorms to warn aviators.

NEW PLANET WILL HELP ASTRONOMERS WITH THEIR WORK

Eros, Approaching Earth, Expected to Furnish Yardstick

Washington — (P) — The tiny planet Eros moving toward the earth from far out in space is expected to bring astronomy a new yardstick to measure the solar system.

Astronomers of the naval observatory already are making preliminary observations of this moving point of light which in January will come within about 16,000,000 miles of the earth.

It will be photographed by widely scattered observatories in a world cooperative program sponsored by the international astronomical union.

Marking the closest approach of a measurable celestial object, except the moon, in many years, Eros will swing well within the orbit of Mars, but will stay outside the earth's orbit.

One of the thousand odd of the planets, or asteroids, in the earth's family circle, Eros, judged by its brightness, is believed about 15 miles in diameter.

On January 29, at the time of its nearest approach, Eros, about the seventh magnitude, almost can be seen with the unaided eye. Stars of the sixth magnitude are just visible to the naked eye.

Eros is very important to astronomers since it comes relatively close to the earth, and is so small that it can be considered a mathematical point with no mass, breadth, or thickness to upset calculations.

These near approaches take place only as long intervals, the last 39 years ago when the distance was almost twice as great as it will be in January.

It is explained at the observatory that the sun, present yardstick for planetary distances, is inadequate since there is a probable error of 100,000 miles in its calculated distance of 92,870,000 miles from the earth.

Astronomers want to eliminate this error, insignificant when the extent of the heavens is considered, but of vital importance when it occurs in the yardstick of space.

The distance of Eros will be determined by trigonometric calculations, using the known radius of the earth as the base of a triangle which has the star in its apex.

The observations involve complicated procedure. Allowance must be made for the rotation of the earth during the six weeks' or more period of observation, for the dispersion of light near the horizon, and even for temperature.

Macks, Cards Start Trek Back To Philadelphia

A'S ONE UP AFTER FOX'S HOME RUN IN 9TH YESTERDAY

Game Had Previously Been One of Greatest Pitching Battles

BY BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS—(AP)—The Athletics of Philadelphia and Cardinals of St. Louis were well on their way back to Philadelphia to resume their world's series battle tomorrow on the American league grounds.

Both teams had reason to be satisfied with their three-day stay in national league territory. The Cardinals won two games to get them back in the series while the Athletics captured the final clash in Missouri in a thrilling battle of pitchers and started home a game ahead and only one decision away from another world's championship.

Manager Mack today made no forecast of the ultimate end of the series except to say that he had faith in his "boys."

"That was a great game closing our stay in St. Louis," said the veteran manager, "a game of superb pitching, and certainly it must have been a very interesting one to watch even though the result, of course, did not please our St. Louis friends."

GABBY OPTIMISTIC
The "gabby" general of the Cardinals, the weather beaten Charles Street, as always, was optimistic today.

"We can win two straight from the Athletics," he said, "and this we will do. We have done it already in this series and we can do it again. Of that I am positive."

The final game in St. Louis, won 2 to 0 by the Athletics in the ninth inning when Jimmy Foxx drove a home run high and far into the left field bleacher seats among a group of disgruntled customers was a gripping struggle.

For seven innings 37-year-old Burleigh Grimes, a courageous, cagey pitcher, and George Barnshaw, younger, bigger but no craftier, but tied on even, scoreless terms. The day was dark a pitchers' day. Burleigh threw his famous "spitters," mixing enough fast balls and curves with them to prevent the A's getting "set," while Barnshaw had a fast one, a curve, and a half speed ball that baffled the opposition by throwing the batsmen off their stride.

In the eighth inning Barnshaw moved out of the picture to make way for a pinch hitter. The Cardinals were even with his rival for each had allowed two hits in seven chukkers. The pinch hitter got on but in spite of the partial success of the Mackian strategy, Grimes pitched himself out of this hole.

Lefty Grove, the speed ball king of the A's, came in to succeed Barnshaw and as he held the Cardinals in check during the eighth and ninth innings and was the pitcher of record when Foxx hit for the circuit, he was credited with the victory.

Each of the three pitchers took full advantage of the poor visibility and in the pinches bore down with their high, hard ones.

BASES ARE LOADED
There was a tense situation in the eighth and the A's at bat. Gelber made a fast play on Miller's roller and threw him out, but Haas profited through an unexpected bump and dashed to first well ahead of the ball thrown by Grimes. Haas tried to steal second and was declared out, but with Haas and Frisch in a scramble about the bag, Umpire Geisel reversed his decision and declared the base runner safe on the ground that Frisch dropped the ball. This Frankie indignantly denied and today he was sticking to his story.

Boley hit through the box and when the ball caromed from Grimes' glove toward third, the pitcher pursued it and attempted to get Haas at third. "Mule" made a great slide and was safe. It was Barnshaw's time to bat but George of Swarthmore is a far better pitcher than batsman, so Jim Moore, a Texas League recruit, was named to go to bat. Grimes took no chances on Moore. He was determined that he would not give him a good ball, a hit for a safety, or even to drive a long fly to the outfield, for it was evident by this time that in all probability one run would win this ball game.

Moore finally walked, filling the bases and Bishop came up. Bishop, a left-handed batsman, made three hits Sunday from the left-handed pitching of Hallahan but could not make one from the right-handed offerings of Grimes. He rolled to Bottomley and Haas was forced at the plate.

DYKES NOT EQUAL
The responsibility was transferred to Dykes, he was not equal to the emergency and hit to Gelbert, who forced Bishop with a toss to Frisch.

Grove then took his angular form to the mound and retired the Cardinals. Grimes continuing his policy of trying to make the A's heavy artillerymen hit bad balls. Simmons scored to sacrifice and was out on a lofty fly to Gelbert. Foxx then hit the first pitched ball into the faraway left field stands and trotted around the bases behind Mickey as a funeral hush enveloped the stands bulging with 38,844 shocked spectators, who were seated comfortably in their seats in anticipation of a possible extra inning contest leading to an eventual Cardinal victory.

The angry Grimes bore down on Miller and Haas and disposed of them in short order and as the Cardinals went to bat for their last effort Bob Foxx took the mound and turned them back.

In the sixth game of the series at Shibe park tomorrow "Wild Bill" Hallahan will pitch for the Cardinals and Barnshaw or Grove, or both, will do a turn for the house of Mack. Manager Mack gave no suggestion as to which of his pitchers would pitch tomorrow, but one thought it was probable that he would use any other than one of the two aces.

ATHLETICS BEAT CARDINALS 2 and 0

The Philadelphia Athletics snapped out of their slump and defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 2-0. A home run by Foxx, Philadelphia's first baseman, with Cochran on base, gave the Athletics two runs in the ninth inning and put the A's in the lead for the world series championship. This telephoto picture shows Cochran scoring on Foxx's homer.

Viking Gridders Rest; Meet Pipers Here Oct. 18

LAWRENCE college football team is taking things easy these days, partly because of the weather and partly because the boys have nothing to do until a week from Saturday afternoon when they meet Hamline university Pipers at George A. Whiting athletic field and open the home season.

The Vikings also are getting a vacation to permit some aching bones and bodies to rest and get back to normalcy after the Wisconsin game Saturday. Going over the Vike roster, Ken Laird seems to be hurt most, suffering a broken jaw. Charley Barnes has a bad ankle and several other fellows are nursing bruised ribs and a various assortment of bumps.

History will record that the Vikings were defeated Saturday at Wisconsin by a score of 53 and 6. But friends of the Vikes who know details of the game revel in the manner in which the Blue and White gridders turned the Cardinals back during the first half and set the Wisconsin stands roaring to "hold 'em."

Lawrence started the game by taking a very direct slap at the Wisconsin gridders.

PRINCETON, BROWN TO SHOW SATURDAY
Carnegie Tech Meets Real Foe in Georgia Tech This Weekend

New York—(AP)—Two members of the one-time "Big Three" will be out for football revenge this Saturday and may get it.

Harvard has no hard feelings against Springfield college but both Yale and Princeton hope to gain satisfaction for reverses they suffered a year ago.

The Brown-bears were the perpetrators of the first of a series of disasters that overtook Princeton last year, winning a spectacular battle, 12-12. Whether Bill Roper's men can beat the Bruins this time remains to be seen.

As for Yale, the Elis bowed to Georgia in the south last year, 15-0, but there is every indication that the tables will be turned at the Yale bowl on Saturday.

Yvling for popular favor with the Yale-Georgia battle, will be Carnegie Tech's duel with Georgia Tech at Pittsburgh. This looks like a toss up as does New York university's scheduled clash with Villanova. Colgate's high-powered offensive should take care of Lafayette. Syracuse also will be heavily favored over Rutgers which already has bowed to Providence.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
ALONZO STAGG has two coaches' sons on his squad this year. . . . One is Pat Page, Jr., son of the Indiana mentor who played under Stagg years ago. . . . The other is Paul Stagg, son of Alonzo himself. . . . Gene Homans lost two holes, was said at Merion, due to the whirling of movie cameras.

Babe says he would have won the homerun honors this year, too, if he had not hurt his finger and his back. . . . Mickey Cochran followed Bobby Jones around at Merion. . . . "It's just like trying to win four pennants in a row," said the Nick. . . . It didn't have to rain at all to make that Sharkey-Campolo bout all wet.

Bobby Jones says he will play golf now "for fun" . . . somehow we did get the idea that he was serious about that game during the last couple of years.

consin eleven by running the ball to the Badger six yard line. The play that probably would have netted a touchdown went wrong on a missed signal.

VIKES REGISTER
Frustrated in their first attempt to score, the Vikings had plenty to keep them busy for a while as Wisconsin recovered and managed to score twice. Then the Vike attack started to function again and this time went down to the Wisconsin goal line and over.

The Lawrence passing attack was working beautifully with Charlie Barnes handling the team well and following instructions to shoot a couple passes on first down. These worked practically every time and with line plunges tossed in between, things looked very good for the Vikes. During the first half Lawrence completed eight of ten passes for 155 yards gain.

What transpired in the Wisconsin dressing room when Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite told his charges what he thought of them probably will never be known. However, when the Badgers returned to the field Thistlethwaite sent into the game his ranking lineup—practically the same team picked by a Madison sports writer as the U. W.'s best eleven—and instructed it to give Lawrence "the works."

The score would indicate that Wisconsin did give the Vikes "the works" for being so saucy in the first half. But part of that victory was hollow—terribly so.

Eddie Kotal may be new at the game of coaching but he's not so new on football strategy and one would almost say on military tactics. For when Eddie saw what was happening with his best men tired and bumped from their first half efforts and with the Badgers testing in their full strength, Kotal jerked the Vikes as they were bruised or became tired and let Thistlethwaite and his ball club do as it pleased.

HAD RESERVES PLAYING
The result is that during most of the last half Kotal had on the field a backfield composed of Louis Schler, Tommy Ryan, Granville Calhoun and Smiley Fiend, the four smallest backfield men on the field. In the line there was one or two veterans, the other boys being reserves who were not expected to stop the Badgers but who learned a lot about the game. The Viking center in the last quarter was a chap named McMillan who weighs about 145 pounds.

Speaking of this McMillan, Kotal swears that the youngster is one of the finest centers he ever saw and if he had a little more weight would put him against anyone in conference circles. On the first play after Mac went into the fracas Saturday, Rebholz, the big Wisconsin back, attempted to crash center for two yards and a touchdown. But he ran into McMillan and failed. On the next play, with the help of a few mates McMillan was ousted and Rebholz went over.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL SOCCER TEAMS IN TIE
Wilson and McKinley junior high school soccer teams battled to a 1 to 1 tie Monday evening and then went through an overtime period before calling quits. The teams were evenly matched as the score indicates. Wilson scored in the early minutes of the game and McKinley just before the final whistle. After the overtime period the score still was tied.

Wilson soccer team meets Boone at Revere's field Oct. 17.

CARROLL REPORTS GOOD FROSH SQUAD

Many Milwaukee Suburban High School Gridders Have Become Pioneers

Waukesha—Numbered among the twenty-eight freshmen who have answered the call of Coach Ralph Kenney for freshmen football practice at Carroll are several men who performed in stellar fashion on the gridirons of Milwaukee high schools.

There is Jordan, tall, capable championship team at West Allis; fullback of the Suburban league Isen, another West Allis man who is holding a guard post; Joers of North Division, and Houston of Tech-high, crowding each other for the center position.

Green of Roosevelt high at end is one of the most promising of all the yearling candidates. Dann, of Shorewood, has also flashed some exceptional backfield ability.

In addition to this wealth of material from Milwaukee schools, Coach Kenney has many other stars from state football circles. There is Spude, the 200-pound tackle from Green Bay. Waukesha furnishes to the Green squad, five men: Bourries and Marconi, both getting the call at half consistently; Winchell, a long, rangy end, who will be remembered as a basketball star; Kamp at end, and Thiel, in the backfield. Behring, of Menomonee Falls, at tackle has a splendid record as captain at that school. With him is running mate, Gates, at guard. From Fond du Lac comes Kennedy at quarter and Teleman at half.

Coach Kenney has announced a schedule which will include games with Lake Forest academy, Nashotah mission, Lake Forest freshmen, and Northwestern Military academy and Naval academy.

New York—Domenico Bernasconi, Italy, knocked out Blas Rodriguez, Mexico, (6).

Toronto—Willie Davies, Charleroi, Pa., outpointed Johnny Goodman, Toledo, O., (8).

Stage Lost A Star When Tom Mills Went Coaching

BY CHESTER L. SMITH
NEA Service Special Writer
Man who had an urge to act Shakespearean roles and who might have been on the stage today had not suffered an attack of homesickness one day in New York, is Georgetown University's new football coach.

He is thick-set, grizzled personable Tommy Mills, one of Kaute Rockne's master strategists at Notre Dame for the last three seasons and bearing the verbal Croix de Guerre pinned on him by "K. K." for being the smartest football scout I ever met.

Mills was graduated from Beloit College after which he went to the University of Wisconsin, firmly bent on studying law. However, the drama also had held out an irresistible lure and he finally accepted an offer to join the cast of Kismet, which Mrs. Fiske was to produce in New York with Otis Skinner in the leading role.

Broadway soon lost its charm for youthful Tommy Mills; as rehearsals dragged on and on, he found himself wondering whether an actor's life was the happy, thrill-packed road he had pictured. There was the offer of a teaching and coaching position in an Omaha high school, which had been made him several months before, and one night when discouragement lay heavy on his shoulders, he hastily packed and started west to claim it.

Now he's at Georgetown in the position Lou Little filled so capably until he left to go to Columbia. A good break for the Blue and Gray? Well, they think so.

NORTHWESTERN AND OHIO STATE GRID ELEVENS TO CLASH

Teams Figure Winner Will Be Contender for Western Conference Title

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO—(AP)—Northwestern and Ohio State have the same feeling about their gridiron battle Saturday—they figure the winner will win the Big Ten title or come extremely close to it.

Reports that Indiana is weaker than expected and that Ohio State accomplished little in defeating the Hoosiers 23 to 0 last Saturday, failed to impress Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern. His reaction was that Ohio is stronger than rated before the season opened.

Coach Sam Williamson told the Ohio State squad that the Northwestern game is the "make or break" point of the season, and immediately ordered secret practice for this week.

Alterations in lineups appeared to be the rule in other camps. Michigan lost Bill Hewitt, a fine end, in the Michigan State game Saturday, and Harry Kipke has been forced to revise his whole line to fill the spot before Purdue invades Ann Arbor Saturday. Walter Gnabahl, reserve fullback at Wisconsin last year, who was shifted to the line this fall, yesterday was returned to the backfield. The Badger squad also was trimmed to 37 men.

Purdue's line did not function up to expectations against Baylor Saturday, and Coach Klizer considered several shifts, while Bob Zupke coached the Illinois squad for another fullback. Captain Olaf Robinson is still out with injuries.

Indiana has gone back to fundamentals to iron out the weaknesses displayed at Ohio State Saturday. The Hoosiers will meet Oklahoma Aggies, which uncorked a passing attack to defeat Iowa, 7 to 0, last week.

Coach Fritz Crisler of Minnesota, looked about for a halfback to bolster up his attack, following indication that Captain Win Brockmeyer's health will permit him to play little this fall.

Coach Stagg indicated he will concentrate on Chicago's offense this week, figuring that offensive power will be the Maroon's best bet against Wisconsin Saturday.

With one down and nine more to play, Notre Dame today was thrust into hard work for the Navy, which will collaborate in the dedication of the $700,000 stadium at South Bend Saturday.

GALLANT FOX IS RETIRED TO STUD
New York—(AP)—Gallant Fox, all-time money winner champion of the turf, has been retired by his owner, William Woodward. The big three-year-old son of Sir Gallahad III will be sent to Woodward's Belair stud in Prince George's county, Maryland.

Gallant Fox swept through all the big three-year-old stakes this season except the tracers in which he was beaten by the 100 to 1 shot, Jim Dandy. He closes his career with total earnings of more than $327,000 compared to Zev's earnings of $313,000, the previous money-winning record.

SOX CENTERFIELDER HIT BY PITCHED BALL
Chicago—(AP)—While his teammates dispersed to their several homes today, Johnny Watwood, White Sox center fielder, settled down for a three week stay in a hospital to recover from the effects of having been struck on the head by one of Pat Malone's fast balls Sunday.

It was not believed Watwood was seriously injured when he was carried from Wrigley field, an X-ray examination, however, revealed a three-inch fracture of the skull, on the right side just above the ear.

Connie and His Two Boys

For all we ever hear of his relatives, Connie Mack might be all alone in this world with his baseball players. But such isn't the case, for here we have Connie photographed with his two sons Connie, Jr., left, and Earl, right. Connie Jr. is still a school boy and Earl is a coach with the A's. It was only natural that they should be photographed together at the world series with a baseball dugout in the background.

Jones To Continue In Competition "If I Have The Desire"

BY BOBBY JONES
American Open, British Open, American Amateur and British Amateur Champion.

AT this particular time in this enlightened age everyone, especially golfers, apparently are supposed to make statements, announcing their intentions for the future with regard to competition and other matters. I have never been able to see that such an action was at all necessary for one who claimed, at least, to be free to pursue any course which at the moment might seem attractive. Yet because of some remarks of my own, which were either misunderstood or which were not intended to convey the meaning which they bore, it has been said that I have definitely committed myself in various particulars. It is in order to definitely correct any such understanding that I desire now to make this announcement, which is, in effect, no announcement at all, but something which I should like to go on record as declaring.

"IF I DESIRE"
In engaging in competitive golf in the past I have never considered it necessary to consult beyond my own preference in the matter. If a competition was scheduled and its time, place, and character came to my notice at all, there were only two considerations which had any effect upon my decision to attend or stay at home: one was whether or not I desired to compete, the other, whether or not I could afford the time and expense necessary to do so. There could never be any question, for example, because I played in the British Amateur and Open in 1928 that I should be a while, and I have been away from business a great deal. But I have been in the same situation before, and when the next spring came around when golf began to pick up, and business began to slow down during the summer months, many things were seen quite differently than in the autumn light. This may be true again next year.

At any rate since I have never felt any duty to compete in championships and have left myself free from that angle, it seems to me absurd that I should now make any statement which might place me under any obligation to stay out of them. In the past I have found both the opportunity and the desire to play in a great many golf tournaments:

BRUINS WIN CITY SERIES, 6 TO 4
Rally in Ninth Inning Monday to Defeat Donie Bush's White Sox

Chicago—(AP)—On the flagpole at Wrigley field where the 1929 National league championship floated during the recent season, the 1930 Chicago city title banner will fly next year.

The Cubs yesterday finished the task of retaining the title they won from the White Sox in 1928, winning their fourth victory in six games, 6 to 4, by an old-fashioned ninth inning rally.

After taking a two-run lead in the fifth, the Cubs saw the Sox tie it again in the eighth. The Cubs finally got organized and cracked Garland Braxton for three runs in the ninth to win game and series.

Each Cub and several others connected with the club, as well as Joe McCarthy, former manager of the Bruins, received $1,250.71, a piece as the winner's share of the gate.

LOCAL TALENT ON AMATEUR PROGRAM

Three Appleton Boys Will Take Part in Two of Thursday's Bouts

Two bouts in which Appleton boys will show their ability to toss gloves have been carded for Thursday night's amateur boxing show at Armory G. The show is again sponsored by Oney Johnston post of the American legion and is the opening program of the fall and winter season.

One of the local talent bouts will feature Joe Verrier of Appleton high school versus a chap named Heine Ehler of Sheboygan. Verrier appeared on a bill here last year and won the decision. He is one of the best boxers ever produced at the high school.

The other bout showing local talent will have Paul Wolf fighting Clarence Kozitske. The two boys are welterweights and both are training hard for their debut in the amateur ring.

Interest in Thursday night's card is increasing according to fight promoters and the steady demand for tickets indicates a big crowd will be on hand when the first gong is tapped. The two New London boys on the card, Winston Thomas and Herbie Thompson are favorites with Appleton fans, and they want to see how they look this fall.

SHAWANO-CO LEAGUE SERIES IS EVEN ALL

Sunday afternoon, Bonduel whitewashed the Advance nine after having lost the first game of the series the week previous, 9 and 1. Buche and Sulitz worked for Bonduel and McDermott and Meyer for Advance. Each team won the top position in half the league season.

Buche, the Bonduel hurler will get a tryout in the Three Eye league next year, according to reports.

U. W. GRID SQUAD IS CUT TO 37 MEN; PREP FOR CHICAGO

Mark Catlin and Al Liethan on Team After Big Cut Is Made

BY STANLEY KALISH
Associated Press Sports Writer
ADISON—(AP)—The University of Wisconsin varsity football team took definite shape yesterday as Coach Glenn F. Thistlethwaite announced a 37-man squad which will oppose Chicago in the Badger Western conference opener here Saturday.

Based on practice performances and work in the doubleheader last Saturday, the squad was reduced from more than 60 to its present total. The varsity selected by Thistlethwaite is:

Halfbacks—Bach, Behr (W), McGuire, Linfor, Pike, and Rebbholz (W). Quarterbacks—Goldenberg, Nelson, and Wimmer.

Fullbacks—Lusby (W), Oman (W) and Schneller.

Ends—Casey (W), Catlin, Capt. Gantenbein (W), Graebner, Jensen (W), Lovshin, Schwiegler, and Thurmer.

Tackles—Bratton, Eggers, Engelke, Lubratovich (W), Smith (W) and Stout.

Guards—Baer, Edwards, Ferris, Frisch, Kabat, Molnar, Swiderski, and Tobias (W).

Centers—Kruiger (W), Liethan (W), and Simmons.

To this list, Walter Gnabach may be added. Starting as a reserve fullback last fall, he was moved to tackle this year and worked with the blocking halfbacks last night. Neil Hayes, out with a fractured leg; Elliker and Pacetti, halfbacks suffering from broken collarbones, also will be on the varsity roll if their injuries heal.

The workout last night was light as Coach Thistlethwaite handed out several plays. The serious business of preparing for A. A. Stagg's thirty-ninth Chicago eleven is expected to get under way today.

Sports Question Box

Question—Who drew up the first rules of boxing?
Answer—Jim Broughton, an Englishman was the first to draw up boxing rules in 1743.

Question—Are the rules of baseball in Indiana different from those in New York?
Answer—No. The rules are the same throughout the country but in different sections they are interpreted differently and cause quite a difference in play.

Question—The fielder drops a fly ball. Is it a hit or an error?
Answer—The scorer must determine that. His judgment determines whether it was a play that was possible or one too difficult to be made.

TAMMANY LOCKS HORNS WITH MAYOR

Lawyers Absolve John F.
Curry from Obligation to Waive Immunity

Copyright, 1930, by Cons Press
New York—(CPA)—Tammany Hall Monday rounded up what was probably the heaviest battery of legal talent ever assembled in New York, and thereby brought Mayor Walker to the fork of the roads.

When the genial and light-footed mayor took office, he publicly announced his intention, if not his subterfuge, to give the Tammany organization his heart and his hand. John F. Curry, leader of Tammany, was Mayor Walker's political ally and friend. In a thundering statement issued Monday, the large-bore lawyers absolve Mr. Curry from all obligation to waive immunity, in the grand jury inquiry into the conduct of New York affairs. George Gordon Battle, Frank P. Walsh, Samuel Untermyer and Leslie J. Tompkins are included among the eleven.

Last week Mayor Walker ordered seven of his subordinates to waive immunity. After several days' hesitation, they did so but specified that the inquiry should cover only their "official acts," such an inquiry could throw no light on the organized sale of jobs in the judiciary, the main issue of the inquiry, and the mayor's ultimatum came to nothing. The New York press is prodding the mayor energetically and he now faces either a clean break with his Tammany adherents or fulfillment of his election pledge.

HELIUM GAS WILL STOP EXPLOSIONS IN OUR AIRSHIPS

Extra-strong Frames Also Remove Fear of Disaster in United States

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
Akron, O.—The fate that betook the R-101 over Beauvais, France, on its first long distance flight, will never strike the Los Angeles or the 6,500,000-cubic foot super-airship, Akron, which is being built here for the United States Navy.

With positive certainty, Lieutenant Thomas G. W. Settle, inspector of naval aircraft, who is representing the navy here during the new airship's construction, and a recognized authority on lighter-than-air craft, dispels any fears for the American airships that might arise from what happened in France Sunday morning.

THE SAFETY OF HELIUM
The reason for Lieutenant Settle's certainty lies in the fact that the American airship now aloft and that being built, as well as the ZRS-5 which is planned for future construction, have helium as their lifting gas. Helium is a non-inflammable gas extracted from certain natural gas fields, particularly in Texas and Oklahoma. Its resistant surety against fire or explosion, such as caused the R-101 disaster, gives any ship in which it is a part a factor of safety of primary importance.

"The Los Angeles can't possibly burn up or explode," says Lieutenant Settle. "Neither will the Akron, when it is completed. The United States has been fortunate in having large sources of this gas, while it is extremely rare and costly elsewhere. Germany, England and the other countries, therefore, have had to use hydrogen, a highly inflammable and therefore dangerous gas to lift their ships."

Hydrogen is more buoyant than helium, so that less is needed to carry a specified weight. But the increased safety of the helium ship is worth the extra cost of building it larger for the same load capacity as a hydrogen ship.

SHOWS HYDROGEN'S DANGERS
The real cause of the R-101's destruction will not be known for some time, until an official investigation is made. But the fact that the ship burned up, or exploded, is enough to show the dangers of a hydrogen airship.

"The British had believed they had a good safety feature in the use of heavy-oil burning Diesel engines, which avoided the use of highly inflammable gasoline," Lieutenant Settle says. "That is an important factor in airship safety, but no ship is wholly safe unless it has non-inflammable helium as its lifting gas."

"There is hardly a probability that the hydrogen gas in the R-101 blew up of its own accord, because the cells in the ship are constantly inflating and deflating. If the gas filled the cells to capacity and threatened to inflate beyond its limit, the automatic 'overpressure' valves would release enough hydrogen to prevent the explosion of a cell."

There are leaks, however, in the gas cells of airships, Lieutenant Settle admits, that can't be stopped up altogether, and such a leak might have been ignited from some cause or other.

DOUBTS STORM CAUSED IT

If the ship struck a storm, Lieutenant Settle can't believe it was shattered, as was the Shenandoah in southern Ohio, in 1925, because the R-101 is supposed to have been the most sturdily built ship in existence. Lightning might have played a part in the calamity, however.

The fate of the Shenandoah is a remarkable example of the safety assured by the use of helium as lifting gas. Although this ship was broken asunder by the storm, it did not catch fire. Only the men in the control car and in the engine cars, which were slung down apart from the airship proper, lost their lives by falling with the heavy masses in which they were caught. Those who happened to be within the airship itself maneuvered the fore and aft sections as two free balloons and landed safely.

While Lieutenant Settle places the burning or explosion of such a helium-inflated ship as the Akron in the realm of definite impossibility, he further says it would be almost impossible for the ship to break apart in a sudden heavy storm. The reason for this is the ship's unusually sturdy construction.

CAN RESIST GREAT PRESSURE
The Akron is being built so strongly that, its designers say, it will be able to buck a storm that has an upward velocity of 60 feet a second, while it is moving ahead at its maximum speed of more than 80 miles an hour. A storm of that velocity is far beyond the most severe ever encountered.

Thus, rigidly built and with non-inflammable helium as its lifting gas, the Akron and its successor, the ZRS-5, will be almost 100 per cent safe. Safety of the Los Angeles, for the same reasons, although this ship is not as sturdily built as the Akron and ZRS-5 will be, is also assured.

Discredit Link Of Aztecs With Old China And Egypt

Washington—(AP)—Any link between ancient Aztec civilization and that of old China and old Egypt Monday was pronounced "utterly without archaeological foundation" by anthropologists of the national museum.

An account of G. Ryden, archaeologist, now displaying in Los Angeles 26 newly-unearthed 2500 B. C. Aztec funeral urns decorated with "many faces purely Chinese in character and other strongly resembling ancient Egyptian sculpture and pottery" failed to convince Dr. A. Hrdlicka and Dr. Nell Judd.

East was east, and west was west, and the Pacific ocean kept their developments distinct and apart in 2500 B. C., Dr. Judd held.

"A century of painstaking archaeological study of Latin America has revealed nothing to support the theory of Chinese and Egyptian influence," he said.

Nor did he place credit in a theory that the early Malays may have migrated via island groups to the South American shore, resulting in a small tribe of bearded Zollian Indians.

Officials of the National Geographic society pointed out that the strange stone images of Easter island, 2,000 miles off-shore from Bolivia, had been used to bolster up the Malay theory of an early Asiatic influence on America.

But the Smithsonian scientists emphatically said the only theory of Asiatic origin in early America which may hold is the Alaskan one, only a few miles divided the continents, and even that is shaping very slowly, very laboriously.

"Like paving a road that hitherto was an indistinct rough path," was the simile of the learned Dr. Hrdlicka.

He was, at that moment, unpacking, arranging his most precious archaeological find of an Alaska summer spent in this very quest—100 of the oldest American skeletons of that oldest of all American regions, and pieces of pottery found with them.

"The pottery does not tell the story. It is an aside. It can be moved place to place, but these—'pointing to the neat row of remains, 'these are the very people whom we are seeking. Not the most ancient, perhaps, but certainly among the most ancient. When we have a sufficient quantity of these skeletons, there can be no doubt of truth regarding their development, their strength, their diseases, their relationship in time and race to other peoples."

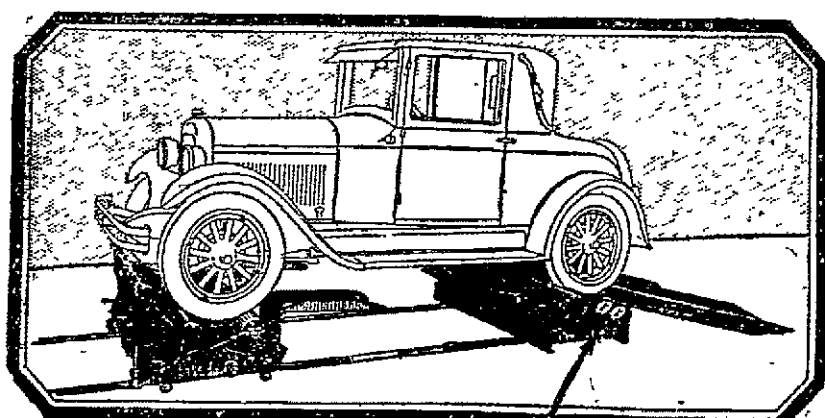

Hrdlicka will add the Alaskan skulls to the 14,000 skulls of all times and all people already alphabetically arranged in neat cabinets in his offices—the finest skull collection in the world.

Isle of Pines, Cuba—(AP)—Government figures show more than $3,000,000 worth of vegetables and fruits exported from this island last year, of which $1,500,000 went to the United States. Fish, honey, lumber, marble and poultry were also sold.

Let Us Test Your Brakes on the Jumbo Brake Tester

This Scientific Brake Testing Machine Accurately Tests
Brakes and Makes Possible Perfect
Equalization and Adjustment

Car is driven up the ramps and onto the sturdy wheel runway which automatically adjusts itself to any wheelbase. Wheels settle onto brake tester rollers. Two powerful electric motors start tester rollers turning. Brakes of car are applied. Braking power on each wheel (two-wheel or four-wheel brakes) is instantly recorded on the gauges which are all located in a group on the left side of the machine for comparative readings. After initial test and comparative readings, brakes are adjusted. This process is repeated until brakes are perfectly equalized.

The JUMBO Brake Tester is the only brake testing machine that takes the weight of the car into consideration. The JUMBO Brake Tester enables us to quickly and accurately adjust and equalize two and four wheel brakes at their maximum capacity — saves unnecessary wear on brake linings and tires — eliminates accidents due to inefficient brakes — in short, gives you ample braking power which may be relied upon for all emergencies.

Take advantage of our new Safety Brake Service.

OUTAGAMIE PAPER MILL DAMAGED BY BEATER ROOM FIRE

Hot Box in Shaft Blamed for Conflagration — Machinery Stopped

Kaukauna — Fire threatened the Outagamie Paper mill about 6 o'clock Tuesday. The blaze was discovered on the floor of the beater room about 6:15 by workmen. It is believed that the fire started from a hot box from one of the shafts.

The fire department was called out and both trucks answered the call. The sprinkling system in the mill was immediately turned on bringing the fire under control in a short time.

There is much grease under the flooring which made the fire burn with fierceness, greatly damaging the flooring. The beater room is located on the second floor in the central part of the building. It may be necessary to put in a new floor in the beater room, officials indicated. No estimate of the damage could be given by mill officials.

Work in the mill was immediately stopped and all the machinery was shut down. Officials feared that work would not be resumed Tuesday.

HUNT COMPANION OF SLAIN WAR VETERAN

Body of Reedsburg Man Found in Orchard — No Money in Pockets

Reedsburg — (P) — The young man who visited several "jeep farms" with Royal Thurber and is thought to have been the last person with him, was hunted today for questioning in connection with the killing of the 44-year-old war veteran.

Thurber was slain with a stone hammer Thursday night or Friday. His body was found Saturday afternoon in a 22-year-old companion of Thurber left his rooming house here with a car like Thurber's Friday morning.

Thurber showed a large roll of bills in a filling station when the two bought gasoline before starting their tour. When a farmer found his body, near some roadside bushes, no money was in the pockets and a government veteran's compensation check had been removed from Thurber's wallet.

The hamper with which he was slain was from the young man's rooming house here. As authorities reconstructed the crime the two returned to the rooming house, Thurber being intoxicated, according to witnesses. Then they started out again, the killer striking Thurber as he slept under the bushes or killing him with additional blows after stunning him in the car. The body was then moved from the bushes to a spot further into an orchard.

AUTOMOBILE FOUND

Madison — (P) — Abandoned near a schoolhouse here, the automobile of Royal Thurber, 44-year-old Reedsburg carpenter and war veteran, was found by Madison police and Sauk-co deputies last night.

SWEET CLOVER AND ALFALFA DISPLAY STRONG VITALITY

Withstand Severe Drought All Summer in Most Sections of County

BY W. F. WINSEY

Alfalfa and sweet clover are more popular as a feed for cattle at the present time in this section of Wisconsin than ever before on account of their wonderful performance in supplying feed for cattle in the summer drouth when all other pastures and hays failed or produced only light yields. Alfalfa and sweet clover are two of the most reliable crops of the kind if some headwork is used in their cultivation. Farmers who know and practiced the rules of the game have had excellent yields year after year without failure. It is now an opportune time for those who have had light crops of alfalfa and sweet clover this year to inspect their fields with a view to determining the cause of their failure and correcting their mistakes in the rising of future crops.

Some of the farmers who make the suggested inspections will find stands not more than one-half thick enough to produce a big yield. They will find stands thick enough in one part of a field and very thin in other parts of the same level and soil fertility. They will find wonderful stands here and there in a field and light stands and bare spots in other parts of some of the fields. In some fields they will find clumps of alfalfa as tall and sturdy as bushes, separated by bare spaces. The clumps and patches are the strongest kind of evidence that alfalfa will grow all over the field from the same kind of seeds that produced the clumps.

SEED AT FAULT

Good and bad seed bought separately from grower and mixed afterwards by dealers despite the laws, and sold in packages are responsible for the clumps of alfalfa and bare spots in some of the defective fields. The percentage of the good and bad seed in the package can be determined by a comparison of clusters and bare spaces in the field. It must be accepted as a matter of fact that if some alfalfa seed in a package grows the rest would do so also if it were of the same kind and that the soil is suitable for growing the crop.

The cause for clumps of thrifty alfalfa and bare places or thin stands elsewhere may be due to the farmer making his good alfalfa with timothy or clovers and doing poor mixing. In the latter case the timothy and clover disappears after the first cutting and leave the clumps and thin stands of alfalfa and a varying proportion of bare spots in the field. Mixing good alfalfa seed with any other kind of grass seed means nothing but wasting the seed and the money the seed costs. The practice may also prevent the sowing of an emergency legum crop in the spring if the alfalfa should winterkill through the farmer hoping to get a partial crop of timothy from the fields.

The cause for clumps of thrifty alfalfa and bare spots and thin stands may be due to the farmer failing to make a good seed bed for his alfalfa. The seed bed should be worked as fine as a garden and rolled to an even surface before the alfalfa seed is sown and the seed should be covered very lightly. It is estimated that farmers lose from one-half to two-thirds of the alfalfa seed sown by not making a fine seed bed and covering the seed lightly at an even depth. The primary cause of this tremendous loss of seed and feed is the failure of alfalfa seed to take root if on the surface or covered too deeply and the inability of the alfalfa sprout to pass through air pockets in the soil, hard lumps of dirt and clods.

The inventor of citric acid was a London chemist and, having his own prices as long as the way of manufacturing the acid was a secret, realized a large fortune.

ILLEGITIMATE BIRTHS DECREASE IN STATE

Madison — (P) — Illegitimate births in Wisconsin decreased from 1,042 in 1927 to 866 in 1929, the state board of health announced today.

Ozaukee-co is the only one of the state's 71 counties which reported no illegitimate births in either 1928 or 1929. During the past year, Adams, Juneau and Marquette-cos were also free from illegitimate births.

Births out of wedlock have been prominent in Milwaukee, Brown and Dane-cos during the past two years the board said. This was attributed to the fact that many hospitals and institutions for unfortunate girls from all parts of the state are located in these counties.

ROAD TO DISMANTLE JUNCTION STATION

Madison — (P) — The Chicago and Northwestern railroad has been authorized to dismantle its station at Whitson Junction (Iowa county) the state railroad commission has announced. The station will be abandoned because it no longer serves as an interchanging point with the Mineral Point and Northern railroad. The latter railroad suspended operations in February, the commission said.

You would not allow that condition to exist, of course, because you naturally wish to show only cleanliness to your friends and guests. Yet many people daily present to the world a face that clearly shows by the imperfections and sallowness that the bowels, which are the drain-pipes of the human system, have been allowed to become clogged and stuffed with waste matter. This refuse, blocked in its natural course, turns back into the blood, filling it with impurities, causing unsightly and embarrassing pimples, blotches and sallowness to mar the skin.

Chapter 14
CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE
F OR the third time, Mrs. Winslow was called to the witness chair. "Mrs. Winslow," began the coroner, "have you a telephone which runs direct to your gardener's cottage and nowhere else?"

"Yes."

"And where is that phone?"

"By the side of my bed."

"Did you use it to call Ferguson on Monday around midnight?"

"I did not," Mrs. Winslow's surprise was manifest.

"Did anyone else go to your bedroom to do so; for instance your, eh—your adopted son, Jack Winslow?"

Mrs. Winslow hesitated. "I left my husband downstairs with his guests," she said. "Jack, I did not see. When I went upstairs, I stayed in my boudoir."

"Was the communicating door open between your bedroom and the boudoir?"

"It was," Mrs. Winslow moistened her dry lips with the tips of her tongue. "But I was listening to the radio, using the ear phones."

Penfield eyed her in obvious disappointment.

"You heard nothing," he exploded. "Were you there all of Monday night—the night your guest, Dr. Kane, just down the hall, was murdered?"

"Murdered?" Mrs. Winslow half rose, then sank back in her chair. With desperate effort she regained her self-control. "I cannot even contemplate Dr. Kane's frightful death without emotion," she gasped. "Yes, I stayed up in my boudoir, playing with my radio set, while I waited for my husband. Arnold had promised to bring Dr. Kane there later that night; instead, he brought news of his death." She covered her eyes with her gloved hand and bowed her head. For a brief instant there was silence, then she looked up.

"Send for Elsa Chase," she cried. "She and she alone, was the last person to see Dr. Kane alive."

Penfield eyed her in silence for a moment, then rose. "Thank you, Mrs. Winslow," he said courteously. Then to the morgue master. "The next witness, Mason, is Miss Kline."

"How long have you been with Miss Elsa Chase?" he asked the nurse.

"Since her accident in Chicago, nearly eight months ago," she replied.

"And is your patient better?"

"Yes."

"Much better?" with emphatic persistence.

"No," meeting his eyes calmly. "Dr. Kane saw Miss Chase on the night of his death. How did she diagnose her case?"

"Dr. Kane did not inform me."

"Well, did Dr. Kane say nothing to you as to her condition, her treatment when he left?"

Miss Kline shook her head.

"Things were not going as he had hoped they would," Mrs. Winslow happened after Dr. Kane's departure.

"Miss Chase drank her broth, took her medicine, a bromide, and I returned to my room and prepared for bed."

"Were you disturbed by anyone walking over your head?" asked Penfield. "Dr. Kane's bedroom and bath were over the suite of rooms occupied by you and your patient."

"I heard no one move about upstairs," she declared without hesitation. "There are, as you doubtless know, heavy rugs in every room, which would tend to deaden any sound; also Mr. Winslow's guests on the floor with us were quite noisy; I heard them laughing and talking until I fell asleep."

"And when did you awaken?"

"When Mr. Winslow and his guests came outside and removed Dr. Kane's body," she explained.

Penfield hesitated, eyeing her sharply; suddenly he spoke with stern abruptness. "When did you last see Mr. Jack Winslow?"

"Yesterday afternoon, just after his return from the city."

"You brought Miss Chase in with you?" he inquired, and as she bowed her head affirmatively: "That is all, Miss Kline; but the nurse in charge on the platform and he glanced at her sharply. "Well."

"My patient is very delicate. May I stay here with her?"

He nodded. "Yes"; gruffly, and Miss Kline hurriedly followed the more later into the anteroom, pushing Elsa along in a wheel chair.

Contrary to custom, Coroner Penfield did not commence his examination with the more or less stereotyped questions.

"Miss Chase," he began, "are you engaged to Mr. Jack Winslow?"

"I am," she replied, with a catch in her throat.

"You have known Mr. Winslow and his family for some time?"

"During the past year, yes."

"And are you on good terms with all of them?"

"Certainly, or I would not remain as their guest." Her quiet dignity and her unusual type of beauty were making their impression, even on Coroner Penfield.

"What part of the country are you from, Miss Chase?" he demanded.

"Boston, in fact?"

She shook her head. "The Chases come from Cornish, New Hampshire."

"But you have lived in Boston with an insistence that brooked no denial. And there you knew Dr. Kane."

"I did not," she cried. "I never met him until Monday night."

"So?" Coroner Penfield's smile was skeptical. "And how long did it take him to make his examination?"

"Not so long," Elsa acknowledged. "Dr. Kane was very thorough," for the first time her voice trembled; "very encouraging, for he held out strong hopes for my ultimate recovery by the removal of the pressure on my spine."

"You would be the gainer then, had Dr. Kane lived," Penfield suggested swiftly.

"Yes."

"And are the loser through his murder?"

"What is that you say?" she asked. "Dr. Kane murdered? Oh, it is not possible!"

"Murdered," went on Penfield, his voice deepening. "While visiting old friends and murdered within eight hours of his arrival in Washington. Of those eight hours, Miss Chase, he spent the greater part with you." Elsa's blue eyes were raised and stared steadfastly into his. She listened as if hypnotized. "You have just stated that his medical examination took 'not so long,' imitating her tone. Then what you occupied the rest of his time with you?"

"We were talking—"

"About what?"

"My engagement to Jack," Elsa became more conscious of the close atmosphere of the overheated room. It made her head swim. "Dr. Kane knew Jack well when he was at Harvard and he told me many anecdotes of Jack's athletic career and there of his remarkable success in chemistry."

"Chemistry!" Penfield echoed the word with triumphant emphasis. "So Jack Winslow is a skilled chemist; well, what business is he engaged in now?"

"He—he—" Elsa, bewildered by Penfield's rapidly mounting excitement and his repeated questions, stammered in her speech. "Dr. Kane was lamenting that Jack hasn't put his knowledge of chemistry to practical use."

"He hasn't!" Penfield rested both hands on the platform against which he leaned and bent toward her. "Dr. Kane was killed by inhaling carbon monoxide gas. That gas," he spoke slowly, impressively, "for experimental purposes, can be generated, and its deadly qualities are known to all chemists." His look held hers. "As the gleam in Jack Winslow's eyes?"

Elsa pressed her hand against her mouth to suppress the scream she feared would escape her. Could she answer truthfully and keep faith with Jack?

"I do not know," she whispered, as consciousness left her.

THREE WISCONSIN CONGRESSMEN HAVE OCTOBER BIRTHDAYS

They Are Rep. John Nelson, James A. Frear and George J. Schneider

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Washington.—Three Wisconsin congressmen celebrate their birthdays in October. No other month has as many Wisconsin congressional birthdays, January coming second with two. If the Senators are counted in, February and May also have two birthdays.

Rep. John Mandt Nelson of Madison will be 60 years old on Friday, Oct. 10. Rep. James A. Frear of Hudson will be 60 on Oct. 24. Rep. George J. Schneider of Appleton will be 53 on Oct. 30.

Of course, there may really be some other month which can compare with October as an auspicious time for the birth of Badger congressmen, for two of Wisconsin's representatives do not reveal their birthdays in their official congressional biographies. If either Rep. William E. Stettin of Stevens Point or Rep. Merwin Hull of Black River Falls happens to have been born in January, the first month can equal this one.

Rep. Stafford, a bachelor, is apparently the most reticent man in Congress on his birthday. Many congressmen do not reveal their birthdays in the Congressional Directory, but all living congressmen tell theirs in the 1774-1927 Biographical Directory.

Rep. Hull was not in Congress in time to be included in it.

BORN IN DANE CO.
Rep. Nelson was born in Burke, Dane county and was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in June, 1892, making Phi Beta Kappa, and from the law department four years later. His first public office was that of superintendent of schools of Dane county, which he held in 1892 and 1894. He first came to Congress in December, 1908, and has been here ever since, except for the 66th Congress, 1919-21. In the 68th Congress he was chairman of the independent progressives in the House, leading a fight on the House of Representatives rules.

In the current Congressional Directory, he mentions his management of the La Follette-Wheeler independent presidential campaign, but this is not listed in the big historical volumes.

Rep. Frear was born in Hudson, where he still lives. Five lines in the current directory give the data and place of his birth, his graduation from National Law university, in Washington, and the public offices he has held; City attorney, Hudson; district attorney, St. Croix county, three terms; Wisconsin assembly, 1902; State senate, 1904; secretary of state, Wisconsin, three terms, elected to 63rd and all subsequent congresses. The big book tells little more, except his middle name, which is Archibald, and his service in the army signal service from 1879 to 1884, and the fact that he moved to Washington, D. C., with his parents when he was a child and was educated here.

Rep. Schneider put only five lines in the current directory about himself: His birthday and the place, Grand Chute, Outagamie county, and his elections to the 68th and each succeeding Congress.

LIVED IN APPLETON
The Biographical Directory, 1877-1927, adds to this information the fact that he moved to Appleton with his parents and went to public school there that he learned the paper-making trade; that he was vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers from 1909 to 1927; that he was member of the executive board of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, 1921-28.

He is the other bachelor of the Wisconsin delegation. His middle name is John.

All the October congressmen have been renominated, too.

Two Badger experts have been named by Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont to sub-committees of the national wood utilization committee, which Secretary Lamont leads.

Morton O. Whitney of Madison, professor of mechanics at the University of Wisconsin, was put on the sub-committee on working stresses or lumber and timber.

A. E. Hall, manager of the millinery department of the Allis-Balmers manufacturing company, Milwaukee, is a member of the sub-committee making a survey of sawmill and woodworking establishments in Maryland to determine the amount of non-utilized wood available in these plants for other industries of the state. They have completed a survey that shows that some $2,000,000 worth of timber is wasted in the sawworking and sawmill establishments of that one state every year.

Dr. Henry R. Trumbower, professor of economics at the University of Wisconsin, is expected here during a coming week to take part in the 15th international road congress to be held here.

Seven authorities were chosen to present different topics. Dr. Trumbower's being the correlation and coordination of highway transportation with other methods of transportation. The congress begins Monday and ends Saturday.

ACCEPT APPOINTMENTS
Wisconsin men who have recently accepted appointment in the army reserves include: George Clifford MacQueen, Milwaukee, captain, Dental corps; Gordon Nichols Olsen, Milwaukee, first lieutenant, field artillery; Edward Raymond Vander of Oshkosh and Burton Frederick Burns of Madison, first lieutenants, infantry; and Frank McKinley Williams, Milwaukee, second lieutenant, infantry.

The Lighthouse service reports that the new lighthouse tower, Violett, built at Manitowish, Wis., and completed in August, has completed satisfactorily its official trials and tests. The tower was, after the tests, sent to Milwaukee where it was out-fitted for her long journey through the Great Lakes and down the St. Lawrence river to Portsmouth, Va., where she will aid ships along that part of the coast.

There are now on the Great Lakes 29 radiobeacon stations operated by the lighthouse service for the aid of navigation. In the week just ended, the service opened the seventh of a new type of radiobeacon station, sending signals which tell a ship how far it is from the sending station. Seven such stations send out synchronized signals for ships.

The Press Publishing company, Sheboygan, has been granted a license to operate radio station WHEB on 1410 kilocycles frequency, with 500 watts power, sharing time with KFLV.

The Milwaukee police department has applied for a construction permit to build a 300-watt station, operating on 2410-2470 kilocycles for limited commercial police service.

Vernon Wright of Mauston wants to operate the new radio station, for which he has applied to the radio commission, five evenings a week instead of three evenings a week, as his first application requested.

APPROVE BRIDGE PLANS
The War department has approved plans submitted by the Wisconsin highway commission for a temporary bridge and for the reconstruction of a bridge across the Fox river in Ber- lin. The temporary bridge is to be on Franklin street, while the bridge is being rebuilt at Broadway and Huron streets.

The Department of Justice has approved title to 335 acres of land in Grant county, conveyed to the United States by Clarence Turner and others, to be added to the Upper Mississippi wild life and game refuge. The land cost Uncle Sam $2,850.

The Department of Justice likes to boast of the effectiveness of its fingerprint system, and among the recent cases to which it points with pride is that of a former Wisconsin convict, known under different aliases in different states.

A fingerprint card arrived from Niagara Falls, N. Y., showing the arrest of one James G. Gaylor. This print was identified as that of Clayton Douglas Jacobs, with numerous aliases. Jacobs had escaped from Ohio State reformatory at Mansfield in June, 1926. Shortly thereafter he was arrested and sent to the Wisconsin state reformatory on a one to three year sentence. Later he was transferred to the Wisconsin state penitentiary.

After his release by Wisconsin, he was returned to Ohio to serve out his sentence there, but he escaped from Mansfield again last June. After his arrest in New York, under the name of Gaylor, the Mansfield prison authorities were notified that their double escapee was in Niagara Falls.

Rep. Schneider put only five lines in the current directory about himself: His birthday and the place, Grand Chute, Outagamie county, and his elections to the 68th and each succeeding Congress.

LIVED IN APPLETON
The Biographical Directory, 1877-1927, adds to this information the fact that he moved to Appleton with his parents and went to public school there that he learned the paper-making trade; that he was vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers from 1909 to 1927; that he was member of the executive board of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, 1921-28.

He is the other bachelor of the Wisconsin delegation. His middle name is John.

All the October congressmen have been renominated, too.

Two Badger experts have been named by Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont to sub-committees of the national wood utilization committee, which Secretary Lamont leads.

Morton O. Whitney of Madison, professor of mechanics at the University of Wisconsin, was put on the sub-committee on working stresses or lumber and timber.

A. E. Hall, manager of the millinery department of the Allis-Balmers manufacturing company, Milwaukee, is a member of the sub-committee making a survey of sawmill and woodworking establishments in Maryland to determine the amount of non-utilized wood available in these plants for other industries of the state. They have completed a survey that shows that some $2,000,000 worth of timber is wasted in the sawworking and sawmill establishments of that one state every year.

Dr. Henry R. Trumbower, professor of economics at the University of Wisconsin, is expected here during a coming week to take part in the 15th international road congress to be held here.

Seven authorities were chosen to present different topics. Dr. Trumbower's being the correlation and coordination of highway transportation with other methods of transportation. The congress begins Monday and ends Saturday.

British Paper Blames Lack Of Preparedness For Crash

Bedford, Eng.—(AP)—With the caption, "Indictment," an editorial appearing in a local newspaper, the Bedford Record, today asserted that the disaster to the R-101, which cost the lives of so many residents of this region, need not and ought not to have happened.

The paper declared that the airship was sent on her long hazardous flight before having been properly tested, with one engine out of order, just after she had shown a tendency to dip at the nose and with weather conditions unfavorable to the flight. "Our brave men were sacrificed to improve men if not even to improve them," concludes the article. "Who did it?"

The record says that first accounts of the disaster "confirm in cruel fashion the worst forebodings of many who watched with anxious interest the all too rapid execution of her alterations and all too casual preparations afterward for her flight. Let there be no mistake about this. The one point which struck the casual and ignorant observer when the R-101 returned from her one inadequate test was the dip at the nose."

The newspaper comments on the airship's behaviour as she got away, her low flying and apparent sluggishness. "Why did they let her go? They knew she was dipping at the nose, and they knew as the man in the street did not that that spelled danger. They knew she had not been tested properly and they knew that one engine at least was out of order. They knew that she was too heavy to begin with and that climatic conditions were against them, and yet they let her go."

The editorial recalled how Salomon August Andree, the Swedish balloonist, was reported to have been driven to take to the air on his flight toward the North pole against his better judgment. "In order to keep a faith that he had never pledged," it adds: "How much of that spirit was abroad on Saturday night?"

PARIS MODIFIES IDEAS ON HATS
Latest Models Made Of Succession of Curved Bands Near Edge

New York.—Makes you smile, sort of. Paris, after insisting on the smooth hat line above the naked brow—so highly unbecoming to so many—is now modifying her ideas. Among the newest close-fitting hats is one which, to be sure, does leave the brow naked; but the hat edge being made of a succession of curved bands, intricately stitched, the effect is fundamentally that of a marvel. Except, of course, that the hat is green felt.

London, where it gets colder sooner, has a horridly striped blouse worn outside the skirt. The blouse is wool, and the only thing to distinguish it from a sweater is the row of one dozen pearl buttons which fasten the high collar up almost to the ears. And with such a military air that you pretty nearly salute at sight.

Now that we've become so womanly, it's quite O. K. to serve lemonade without in your parlor when you're clad in backless corpejumeau. By backless, one means cut out to the waist in back. You may wear a velvet goatee, too, if you like, and what our womanly great-grandma would say is just too bad.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU "LIBRA"

If October 8th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11:15 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 6:30 a. m. to 7:45 a. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9:30 p. m.

Astrological influences on this date will be inspirational, and brain workers should profit from these unseen forces and produce rather than dream. Occult manifestations. Your spiritual faith will be sorely tested.

The child born on this October 8th will be by nature impulsive, quick in thought and action, and inclined to go to extremes in all things. It will be very frank and outspoken, and will make enemies through want of tact. It will desire to excel in its work and studies and will have high ambitions.

You have a defeatist mind, and are beaten before you begin to fight. If you were more violent in your pessimism, you would do something instead of sitting and moping. Fear and lack of self-confidence crucifies your self-expression. When there is some one to encourage you, some one to show you how to reach your goal, you buck up and are a different person. Others have to meet you more than half way. No matter how friendly your heart may be, your seldom extend your hand first. A life of ease and luxury would appeal to you very much, for you are neither overly mentally nor physically ambitious. You do not want to take either your play nor your work too seriously. You do not like to dip into things too deeply, a superficial skimming pleases you much better. This attitude, is, of course, cheating you out of many of life's most exquisite fruits — those for which you have to dig the deepest, or reach the highest.

Your passions are quite quiescent, although you are capable of very deep feelings, and very fiery emotions, if they are once awakened. If you allow yourself to fall completely in love with some one of the opposite sex, you may so forget yourself, so wake up, that you will become an entirely different and more alive being. Your nature is naturally responsive. You love music, and had you sufficient ambition, you could excel as a musician.

LEADING SHARES ON STOCK MARKET AGAIN DOWN TO LOW LEVELS

Large Scale Liquidation Swept into Mart After Short Lived Rally

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor

New York—(P)—Leading shares were marked down close to the panic levels of last November in today's stock market.

Large-scale liquidation swept into the market after a short-lived rally in the first hour. Stocks were absorbed in orderly manner, but bull leadership failed to appear, and selling orders for both long and short accounts kept the list under stubborn pressure until well into the afternoon, when trading slackened and recovery of a point or so appeared here and there.

Few shares lost more than 3 points, although Peoples Gas, a volatile issue, dropped 17. Allied Chemical, which lost 18 yesterday, rallied 7 points, then dropped 11 from the top. American Telephone sold off nearly 3 to 1 1/2, a new 1930 low, only one point above the bottom of last November. U. S. Steel dropped more than 2 to a new 1930 low at 15 1/2, 11 1/2 above the November minimum. General Electric and Radio each fell more than 2 points to record lows for the present session.

Eastman, American and Foreign Power and Light, and Macy declined 2 to more than 4.

Although disclosure that stock exchange officials had questioned some members about bearish operations appeared to have been the basis for the opening rally, Wall Street was inclined to interpret the action as indicating merely a determination to make the bears play fair, rather than any indication that the exchange might be about to place restrictions on short selling, which has always been defended as an essential factor in a free market.

It was said in brokerage circles that the exchange was concerned over such unethical practices as making use of knowledge of stop loss orders on specialists books as the basis of bear drives, or the spreading of malicious or destructive propaganda. It was recalled that the investigation of the short interest last November marked a turning point in the trend of the market, but failed to disclose any concerted bear drive.

On the whole, the persistence of the selling was somewhat perplexing to brokerage circles. Although many of the so-called private sales have held above last November's lows, the general level of stocks has broken well below that level, as was shown by a tabulation of 687 stocks made by a commission house, which showed the average price the lowest in two years.

In the early trading, a few large orders indicated that some orders were being made to support the market, but the list soon gave way. So far as could be learned, important banking interests were unconcerned over the liquidation. Brokers felt that much of the selling was of a discouraged variety, since repeated efforts to rally the list have failed during the past six months. Further investment buying was reported, but only on a small scale.

The day's news account for the action of the market. News from Brazil continued to be disturbing, and transactions in Brazilian exchange were at a standstill. Nevertheless, bankers did not believe the Brazilian situation would normally have any marked reflection in this stock market. Trade reports indicated that retail sales were in better volume since the code breaker, and wholesale merchants said they were receiving numerous re-fill orders. Early estimates of this week's Steel Mill operations, however, still indicated that there may be a slight slowing up in two percent.

RESUME SELLING OF LATIN BOND ISSUES

New York—(P)—Selling of Latin American issues was resumed in the bond market today, and the decline carried many to new low ground for the year on losses ranging from 1 to 10 points.

The sharp reaction was a continuation of the selling movement and some issues of Chile, Argentina and Peru were under pressure. Brazilian 5s dropped about 7 points, Brazil Central Railway Electric 7s slumped about 10, Rio Grande do Sul 7s, 5s, 10s, Bolivian 7s about 2, Chile 6s of 1923, 1 Peru 6s of 1920, 4 all to new lows for the year. Brazilian governments and other issues of that country bore the brunt of the selling, but virtually the whole South American list was unsettled. Bonds of American concerns with large interests in Brazil steadied after sharp breaks yesterday.

There was much interest in financial circles in the appearance of the $100,000,000 Canadian 30 year 4 percent loan which has been expected for several days. Prices at 95 1/2 to 100, about 4 1/2 percent. It was offered by a large international group of American and Canadian investment houses and banks. It was the principal issue of the day, and is the largest foreign loan placed in the American market this year, surpassing the German International 5 percent loan.

Prime investment issues suffered somewhat from a notable and only a few loans made any notable progress. Activity was considerably expanded. A feature of the railroad group was a sharp decline in St. Paul adjustment 5s of 2000, off about 4 points to a new year's low.

United States governments were steady.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

New York—(P)—Unfilled orders of slab zinc of all grades declined slightly during September to 27,000 tons, compared with 28,972 tons at the end of August, the American Zinc Institute reports. Unfilled orders at the end of September last year totaled 20,270 tons. Production last month showed a slight increase to an average of 1,349 tons daily, compared with 1,324 tons daily in August, but showed a decrease from the average of 1,733 tons for September last year. The number of retorts operating in September also showed a decrease, averaging 47,415, compared with 48,575 in August.

World production of Ford cars and trucks in September totaled 97,885, compared with 99,142 in August and 101,905 in September last year.

It was reported in Wall Street that an agreement has been reached for consolidation of Gillette Safety Razor Co. and Autostrop Safety Razor Co. and that the necessary financing to take the form of $200,000, 100-year convertible 5 percent notes and about $1,000,000 of 5 percent preferred stock convertible into common for 5 years, will shortly be announced. The proceeds of the notes would be used for working capital and the $1,000,000 of preferred would be exchanged in exchange of Autostrop "A" and 225,500 shares of "B".

Dow, Jones & Co. reports that steel output in the Chicago district this week is the average about 57 percent of capacity, compared with close to 60 percent last week. The reduction is due to the banking of a blast furnace at the South Chicago works of the U. S. Steel Corp.

MILK PRODUCERS TO HEAR TALK BY CHEESE MANAGER

F. A. Corniea, Plymouth,
Head of Federation, to Deliver Address

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington—F. A. Corniea of Plymouth, Wis., general manager of the National Cheese Producer's federation, will be on the program of the National Cooperative Milk Producers' federation convention in Des Moines, Iowa, Dec. 6-8.

The afternoon of Nov. 7 will be devoted to a discussion of the relationship of market control to federation. Corniea will appear on that program to discuss cheese markets.
Butter markets will be discussed by John Brandt of Minneapolis, Minn., president of the Land O' Lakes
Creameries, Inc., to which dairymen in western Wisconsin belong. Milk and cream will be discussed by I. W.
Hicks of Baltimore, Md., secretary-treasurer of the Maryland state dairymen's association.

Relations of the great dairy distributing concerns to the coopera-tives and problems connected with stabilization of dairy markets will feature the meeting, which will be the fourteenth annual convention of the national federation.

The program, which was made public here in incomplete form by Claudes H. Holman, secretary of the federation, carries also the names of
A. W. Milburn of New York City, president of the Borden company, the largest manufacturing organization in the dairy industry and T.
H. McInerney, also of New York,
president of the National Dairy Products corporation, the largest distributing organization in the industry.

Harry Hartke, president of the National Cooperative Milk Producers' federation will be on the program to present the cooperative side, while representatives of the two big organizations which have expanded rapidly during the past few years, absorbing many independent manufacturing and distributing concerns, will present the private commercial angle.

The federation represents 50 groups covering a territory from coast to coast and marketing the milk products of approximately 340, 000 families.

The object of the session at which these three different points of view are to be presented, Holman said, is to promote a friendlier feeling within the dairy industry and to enable the spokesmen of the three great groups to express the policies of their respective organizations. This session will take place on the morning of Nov. 8.

A. I. McGuire, general manager of the Land O' Lakes Creameries, Inc., of Minneapolis, will discuss flexibility of organization at the conference on members, relationships and education, to be held in the morning of Nov. 6.

Darrow Defends Chicago's "Public Enemies"

Clarence Darrow, famous criminal lawyer, emerged from semi-retirement in Chicago the other day to appear in court for two gangsters who were listed among Chicago's "public enemies"—George "Red" Barker and William "Three-Fingered Jack" White, who were brought in on vagrancy warrants. This photo, taken in Judge John H. Lyle's courtroom, shows: 1, Assistant State Attorney Ditchburne; 2, Darrow; 3, Assistant State Attorney Brown; 4, Assistant State Attorney Mast; 5, Attorney Smith; 6, White.

TRAINING

Perhaps no profession requires more tact and sympathy than that exacted of the furniture director. To be worthy of his calling, he must, by temperament and training, be ready to serve the public at a moment's notice, and that too, with the utmost sincerity and decorum.

SECURE FARM WOOD FROM POOR TREES

Sound Timber Should Be
Are Advised

Estimating that approximately 36, 000,000 cords of winter fuel wood are cut on farms in the United States annually, the department of agriculture at Washington, D. C., in a statement made public recently said this fuel should be from fallen, diseased, crooked or other poor quality trees. In this way, it said, cordwood could be substantial profit to farmers without interfering with conservation of marketable timber crops.

The farmer who can cut his winter fuel wood from his own farm woodland is lucky, says the forest service of the agricultural department. He can get his fuel at low cost and at the same time be improving his woodland for timber production.

Farm fuel wood is an important farm crop, the department says.
About 35,000,000 cords are cut on farms yearly. In one year, during the war, only five other crops exceeded it in value, namely, corn, wheat, oats, hay and cotton.

In pointing out the kinds of wood that should be used for fuel, the department suggests wood lying on the ground and still standing, trees rotted, diseased or injured by insects so they will probably die; crooked trees crowding out the straight ones, large old trees unsuitable for lumber because of their big limbs and branches and short trunks, and trees that shade out numerous smaller ones; small trees overtopped by larger and better ones.

MOUNTAIN TALE

Fairbanks, Alaska — Mountain peaks in the Caribbo range are growing taller, according to fur traders here. As proof, one trapper points out that he has found trees on mountain sides with high water marks on them from lakes and streams now hundreds of feet below.

A government geological party has been asked to investigate the growth of the peaks.

This sum is being spent for new buildings, central office equipment, exchange lines, long distance lines,—and it means that steady employment is being provided a large number of Wisconsin people.

The Wisconsin Telephone Company is mindful of its obligation to the public—and is doing everything in its power to assist in maintaining business stability in Wisconsin.
